TWIST OF FATE in the form of a tornado killed an infant, injured at least 37 persons and left affluent sections of Cheyenne, Wyo., strewn with rubble Monday. David McKinnon, aged 14 months, died instantly of head injuries when his family's mobile home was hit. It was the city's first brush with a tornado and President Carter has been asked to declare the ravaged blocks disaster areas, qualifying residents for emergency federal relief.

Row over profits snags Alaska pipe

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — While U.S. President Jimmy Carter is urging completion "without delay" of the Alaska natural gas pipeline, project sponsors have threatened to stop work on the $14 billion project that would bring Alaskan gas to the lower 48 states.

The pipeline project has been before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for about two years and is tied up in a dispute over how much profit the pipeline owners will be allowed to make.

Carter Monday blamed the oil-company owners of the gas for tieing up the pipeline, and instructed Energy Secretary James Schlesinger to meet with them to see that the project is completed "without delay."

The partnership that has proposed building the pipeline is hoping to complete the Alaskan segment in 1984, with southern portions bringing gas from Canada before that.

Carter told the National Association of Counties in Kansas City that the pipeline by 1985 could supply enough gas to displace 700,000 barrels a day of imported oil.

Three oil companies - Exxon, Atlantic Richfield and Standard Oil of Ohio, in conjunction with British Petroleum — own almost all the gas reserves of the Prudhoe Bay fields.

Under Carter's 1977 order setting out how the project was to be built, these companies, which produce the natural gas, were to take part in financing the pipeline.

A spokeswoman for Alaskan Northwest Natural Gas Transportation Co., the partnership which intends to build the pipeline, said her company has tried to start negotiations with the oil companies but has received no response.

The spokeswoman said the oil companies were expected to provide loan guarantees for the project's debt financing, expected to account for three-fourths of the $12 billion to $14 billion cost of the pipeline.

The loan guarantees are crucial because they will make it much easier to attract private financing for the rest of the project.

(A dampening already has been noticed on world financial markets where the U.S. dollar has been sinking steadily since Carter's first speech Sunday. Page 16.)

Somoza flees, battle rages

Times News Services

MANAGUA (AP) — Anastasio Somoza was forced by revolution to resign early today as president of Nicaragua and he flew in his private jet aircraft to exile in Florida, ending 42 years of dictatorship by his family.

But heavy fighting broke out in the Latin American country amid reports the man designated as his temporary successor is clinging to power.

Members of the Nicaraguan Congress had elected the president of their lower house, Francisco Urcuyo, a long-time friend of Somoza, to succeed him temporarily after he resigned.

At first, Urcuyo, 54, was expected to serve only until the arrival from neighboring Costa Rica of a provisional junta named by the Sandinista guerrillas.

But diplomatic sources in Managua and San Jose, capital of Costa Rica, said later that Urcuyo has let it be known he plans to finish Somoza's term, which ends in March, 1981.

On the outskirts of rebel-held Masaya, 32 kilometres south of Managua, reporters saw a Sherman tank, two military armored cars and arillery hitting Sandinista guerrilla positions.

A private Lear jet streaked out of Nicaragua carrying Somoza, his son Anastasio and half-brother Gen. Jose R. Somoza to Homestead Air Force Base near Miami. An entourage of more than 40 flew in four other planes.

The fleet touched down shortly before 7 a.m PDT at the giant air base, which was sealed off to reporters and photographers.

Somoza, whose personal fortune is estimated at $500 million, and his party were met by waiting limousines that took them to a walled mansion on Miami Beach's Sunset Island. It is one of several luxurious home where he may stay if he decides to take up permanent residence in the Miami area.

Somoza embraced waiting family and friends and then held a short news conference on a side patio of the two-story, tiled-roof home.

"I am grateful to the government of the United States to allow me to live here in exile," he said.

He said he had enough friends in the Miami area

Doses of bad news issued on economy

Times News Services

OTTAWA — There were two stiff doses of bad news about the economy today with predictions of slower growth, continued high inflation and unemployment and a record $13 billion federal spending deficit.

Economic Development Minister Robert de Cotret told reporters government revenue will fall short of total spending this year by $13 billion, up sharply from the $10.75 billion deficit that had been predicted by the former Liberal government.

And the Conference Board in Canada issued a pessimistic outlook on the economy saying the impact of a U.S. recession in Canada will mean more unemployment and even slower growth than the country has experienced in the last two years.

De Cotret's remarks to reporters came as he and Manpower Minister Ron Atkey announced they would spend $100 million on a Canada Works temporary job creation program, aimed at easing unemployment in the more depressed regions of the country.

They said unemployment would get worse but de Cotret said he did not expect Canada would actually head into a recession.

Atkey said 91 per cent of the money will be spent in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces, areas of highest unemployment, and the rest in British Columbia, the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

The money will be paid to community groups using unemployed for community projects.

The Canada Works program was created by the previous Liberal government in 1977 and to date $510 million has been spent to create 107,000 short-term jobs.

During the May 22 election campaign the Conservatives pledged a new-look employment policy that would make greater use of the private sector and seek to create more permanent jobs. The two ministers said there was not enough time to do what they wanted to do before this winter and thus Canada Works is being used one more time.

The Conservatives have yet to release the detailed overview on the economy that finance minister John Crosbie promised shortly after taking over the portfolio.

Concern about a slowdown in the U.S. economy deepened last week as the Carter administration predicted the U.S. was headed into a recession.

The U.S. buys about 70 per cent of the more than $55 billion in goods that Canada exports and a slowdown south of the border means a weakening of markets for goods produced here.

"It is very difficult to escape the conclusion that the economy is heading toward a period of very low growth," said Dr. Thomas Maxwell, vice president and chief economist of the Conference Board in Canada.

Maxwell gloomily predicted inflation would average 9.2 per cent throughout 1980 because of high food prices, rapidly rising import prices and higher wages that would depress industrial profits to 6 per cent in 1980 from 18 per cent this year.

Eggs up two cents

Eggs went up another two cents a dozen in Victoria this week in response to rising feed costs.

Eggs have risen about seven cents a dozen since November and further hikes are indicated.

Egg prices are set by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency based on the cost of production. Feed costs have been rising steadily since fall.

ICBC scoops $5.3M debts

A crackdown on bad debts has netted the Insurance Corp of B.C. $5.3 million dollars, some of it owed since the Crown corporation was established five years ago.

Early this year, the corporation issued a confidentail list of debtors to 786 insurance agents and motor vehicle branch offices in an effort to collect the $19 million owed by 106,000 motorists.

Faced with the choice of having their insurance cancelled or paying the debt, 30,690 people have paid.

"We're still going after the others," public relations officer Bob Egby said Monday.

He said that more than $1.5 billion in insurance premiums has been collected since 1974, while less than $10 million is owed on premiums. The corporation had a surplus of $6.1 million last year.

The other part of the debt is from penalty point premiums, assessed after a driver accumulates more than six points for driving infractions.

Premiums are based on the square of the points accumulated to a maximum of $400, but this may be one of the last years that penalty point premiums, which have brought the corporation $53 million since 1974, are levied. A study group set up last fall by the motor vehicle branch, wants them abolished.

A mandatory licence suspension accompanies the non-payment of insurance or penalty premiums but difficulty in notifying people of the suspension has created a tremendous backlog in the motor vehicles branch and, said the group's interim report, "diverted attention from suspensions based on bad driving records."

It recommended that penalty premiums be replaced with fines.

Beautiful blue skies still hanging in there

In fact, he says things are going to be even better.

Dressler explained that the hot weather is being caused by a "thermal trough," a low-pressure area that's caused by high temperatures in the Interior.

"We're into our normal summer-type weather," Dressler said.

With the trough situated along the coast, there's an outflow of hot dry air from the Interior, Dressler explained further.

The trough will start to move inland in the next day or so, reversing the airflow and causing moist breezes to waft in from the Pacific.

That will give Vancouver Island much the same weather it's enjoyed over the last couple of days, but with more comfortable temperatures.

There will probably be some early morning fog up towards Sooke in the next few days, but the sun will quickly burn it off.

Yesterday's high of 32 degrees at the airport (31 downtown) was a whole four Celsius degrees off the all-time sizzler of 36.1 degrees back in 1941 — and that too was on July 16.

Hot spot in the province yesterday was Lytton at 38, while high honors for Vancouver Island went to Port Alberni for its 34.

UVic study blasts B.C. medical training

A University of Victoria report blasts the health ministry for the poor state of medical training and says there are severe deficiencies in professional training as a whole in the province.

The hard-hitting report says B.C. is far behind the Canadian average in training in all but three professions with the worst situations occurring in medicine, engineering and commerce.

The report, prepared by UVic staff, lays the blame for the medical crisis directly to the ministry's bad policies.

It says children largely from elite families in B.C. go to medical school and calls for more government assistance through the B.C. student assistance plan.

UVic president Howard Petch said the report will be released later this week.

"It will be handed out to every MLA and politically influential person we can think of," he said in an interview.

The report points out severe deficiencies in professional education in B.C and shows the need for increased government assistance to students.

"I'm hoping the government, when it sees what is happening, will act."

A copy of the report will be sent to the Universities Council of B.C., responsible for distributing government funds to the province's three universities each year.

Petch believes the government doesn't fully understand the problem.

Reacting to the UVic report, Health Minister Bob McClelland said today the lack of B.C.-trained doctors is the very reason the government is building a major new teaching hospital at the University of B.C.

That facility will double the number of graduating doctors from 80 per year to 160.

The hospital should be operational by early next year and UBC has already started to increase the number of medical students.

Well over 100 will enrol this fall.

The minister said the decision to increase the number of doctors has not been without its critics. The B.C. Medical Association, among others, says B.C. already has too many doctors and training more will just compound that problem.

McClelland said, however, it is his ministry's responsibility to give every educational opportunity to B.C. students.

And the minister said Dr. Petch is talking nonsense if he says B.C. is losing federal research money because there is only one medical training facility in the province.

He said Petch only wants such a facility at UVic but the ministry has no plans for any such project at this time.

"B.C. is not losing federal research money as far as I can see," McClelland said. "Federal research funds have been cut way back, but that move has affected every province."

But B.C. has made available major new funds through lottery grants which are funding numerous medical research projects.

"We're filling a major gap created when the federal government backed out," the minister said.

Comprised mainly of statistics, the report details the slow development of professional schools over the past 30 years, pointing out the deficiencies.

"I get quite worked up when I think about it," said Petch.

The unhealthy medical situation can be traced directly to the health ministry's policies, Petch charged.

The ministry refuses to provide more medical training facilities because it is cheaper to bring doctors, nurses and other medical

N-reactor welds 'faulty'

TORONTO (CP) — A former inspector with Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. says that faulty welds in Canadian nuclear reactors could remain undetected because of poor quality control by the federal agency.

George Newby, 63, said in a recent interview that the agency was not able to detect whether welds were good, bad or indifferent because of sloppy inspection techniques. A faulty weld could cause a serious accident at a nuclear reactor.

The agency provides nuclear designs and consultants for some Canadian utilities and markets the Candu reactor abroad.

Newby said that while he was working for the AECL he witnessed improper welding of reactor vessels, dangerous corner-cutting to save money on weld x-rays and lax inspections by company inspectors.

In one such instance he said he was appalled by x-rays done by an outside company for AECL.

"I'd never seen a film of a plate like this before. They'd used a double-wall technique — you get images of two surfaces of a vessel. It's as if two of us went to get a chest x-ray and we stood pressed right against each other."

Newby insisted the x-rays be redone using a single-wall technique. He said a crack was then discovered in the casting.

"I took the original set (using the double-wall technique) to a senior welding surveyor at AECL. He held them up to the light and said: 'Nothing wrong with these.'

"That isn't the way you treat something critical and I think anything that goes into a reactor is critical. There's more to film than looking in the light and saying: 'I see a crack. I don't see a crack.' It's not like the China Syndrome."

Newby, who has worked for more than 40 years as a welder and a welding inspector, was hired by AECL in 1975 and trained as a quality assurance surveyor for a project involving a Candu reactor sold to Argentina.

He said one supplier on an Ontario Hydro job had run into some problems while working on reactor vessels and called Newby for advice.

"I don't think they suspected for a second I'd find anything wrong with what they were doing. But I saw immediately they didn't have a single welder in the plant who could do a closing weld.

Newby left the agency in 1976 after a heated argument with his superior. A company spokesman said he was incompetent.

Meanwhile, Ontario Hydro says its nuclear plants are solid enough to withstand even the crash of a Boeing 747 jet.

A report released to the legislature's committee on Ontario Hydro affairs said chances are remote that a large aircraft would strike a nuclear plant. But the plane wouldn't have enough velocity to penetrate the reactor if it did.

The findings were based on a study done by two nuclear design engineers on the imaginary crash of a 747 into Hydro's Pickering and Bruce nuclear plants.

Mounties crack big Canadian drug ring

A seven-month investigation by Cranbrook RCMP and Colorado state police has broken one of the largest drug rings operating in Western Canada, police said Monday.

Four people were charged in Cranbrook. Four others were arrested Saturday on Canadian warrants in Denver, Colo., and face extradition to Canada for trial. In addition, 36 others were charged in Denver on U.S. warrants.

RCMP said about 1,500 pounds of high-grade Colombian marijuana was seized during the investigation, including 500 pounds seized near Cranbrook on July 5.

Charged in Cranbrook with conspiracy to import narcotics and conspiracy to traffic in narcotics were Mary Louise Richard, 49, of Calgary, Gail Richard, 29, of Smithers, and Dean Lester Richard, 25 of Kelowna. It was not known if the Richards are related.

Those charged in Denver and facing extradition are: Dave Armitage Casey, 29, Robert Casey, 27, Barry Lyn Beard, 30, and Dean Charles Doughty, 26, all of Denver.

Housing market racist Ottawa study shows

OTTAWA (CP) — Native Canadians and immigrants are subject to regular discrimination when trying to rent or buy housing, says the Canadian Council on Social Development.

In a report released Monday the council says poorly-worded human rights legislation in some provinces, lack of broad public awareness of the laws and even inadequate enforcement are partly to blame for the lack of protection.

The council, funded by government and the private sector to comment on social policy, says there are many blatant examples of racial discrimination in housing although much of it goes unnoticed.

"While campaigns explaining equal opportunity rights in employment are becoming increasingly more familiar, one never sees similar media promotion of human rights legislation in the area of housing," says the report, written by Dorothy Quann, a law student at the University of Ottawa.

Many landlords refused to rent apartments or rooms to individuals of certain racial or cultural origins because of stereotyping of what kind of tenant he or she might be.

Often the attitude of the landlord is totally irrational — not based on any previous experience with others of similar origin — or may be based on a single bad experience by the landlord or an acquaintance.

The report reports this discrimination:

—Interviews in Ottawa and Toronto found one landlord would only rent to immigrants from the Caribbean who had spent at least one winter in Canada because "during the first winter they just freeze and keep the thermostat up too high." Others said they would rent to "coloreds" but not West Indian immigrants because they thought they would play music all night.

—Interviews with Montreal landlords found stereotyping of East Indians as "people who do not take care of their places and sometimes skip the place without paying their rent."

—Indians and Metis are stereotyped as welfare recipients with large families who are "bad risks."

The report says that discrimination in rental accommodation is worst among landlords who rent rooms. Yet there was nothing in the laws of Newfoundland, Alberta, the Yukon or Northwest Territories to prevent the practice.

"This restriction is of particular significance to the native Indian in Alberta who is likely to need this kind of housing on first entry to the city," the report says.

Discrimination also exists in the sale of homes.

Of 30 Ontario real estate agencies surveyed by the Canadian Civil Liberties Association in 1976, 27 said they were willing to screen out racial minorities.

Finally. . . a bright idea for an eight-foot problem

Here's an only-in-New York story that City Councilman Abraham G. Gerges, of Brooklyn, swears is true. He was visiting a lawyer friend and was struck by how dark the office seemed. "I can't get anyone to change this eight-foot fluorescent bulb," the friend said, and so Gerges volunteered to do it. Now he had the problem of what to do with the old bulb. Gerges went down to the lobby. No trash receptacle. He went out to the street. No receptacle there, either. He even went down into a nearby subway station; same story. It also was 4:15 p.m. so Gerges figured he might as well take the subway home to Brooklyn. Somewhere out there, he'd find a place for the bulb. He was standing in the crowded train, holding the bulb upright, when three people came aboard. They couldn't find seats. But they saw Gerges grasping what appeared to be a pole and, reasonably enough, they grabbed hold of it. "Hah," Gerges said to himself. "I've finally got a way out of this." At his stop, he simply let go of the bulb and left the other three standing there. "I've been wondering," Gerges said Monday, "what happened to the last guy."

Meanwhile, a London judge ruled Monday that British courts have jurisdiction in the divorce case of Rolling Stones singer Mick Jagger, putting a legal roadblock in spouse Bianca's efforts to shed her husband in the United States. The decision, which came after seven days of private hearings, causes problems because a California judge ruled last May that U.S. courts have jurisdiction in the case.

Still on the legal front, Olivia Newton-John and Peter Frampton are being called to sing a concert of another sort — one before a Buffalo, N.Y., grand jury investigating alleged immigration law violations by people in show business. The Buffalo Evening News says Olivia, an Australian, and Frampton, who is British, are just a couple of the star witnesses who will be subpoenaed in a probe that could affect other foreign nationals who are headline performers. The newspaper says one of its sources calls the investigation "the hottest potato in town."

Movie director Rick Edelstein says Barbra Streisand has decided not to perform in public any more because of fear of audiences, The Ladies Home Journal reports. Edelstein, described as a confidant of the superstar for the last 20 years, was quoted in the magazine's August issue as saying: "One of Barbra's big fears is appearing in public. Having audiences spend millions of dollars to see her perform reduces her to a tremor. She gets very scared. That's why she has decided not to go on stage any more."

She's a 16-year-old school girl. He's a 60-year-old artist. And they're in love. Sound familiar? No — it's not Lolita. Nor is it a scene from The Prime of Miss Jean Brody. This time the title is Circle of Two, to be filmed next month by Film Consortium of Canada on locations in Toronto, New York and the Caribbean under the direction of Jules Dassin. Co-stars for the latest June-January love yarn — Richard Burton and the Paper Moon kid, Tatum O'Neal.

Austrian mountaineer Reinhold Messner, who conquered Mount Everest without oxygen, has also scaled the world's second-highest and most difficult peak without a breathing aid, the West German news magazine Der Spiegel said Monday.

And finally, Prince Andrew, 19, ended his school days Monday before entering the Royal Navy in the fall. "For the girls, the cry 'the Fleet's in' will take on a whole new meaning," predicted the London Daily Express. Second in line to the throne and third oldest of the Queen's four children, Andrew, whose fun-loving proclivities have earned him the nickname of Randy Andy in the irreverent U.K. tabloids, has chosen a life of naval adventure rather than going to college.

Hawaii police defy courts

HONOLULU (UPI) — Hawaiian police officers today ignored a court restraining order to return to work from a "blue flu" strike and pressed their demands for higher pay.

Ninety per cent of the state's 1,900 officers called in sick Monday. On the island of Oahu, for example, there were fewer than 60 lawmen for more than 700,000 residents. No increase in crime was reported, however.

A spokesman for the Honolulu Police Department, the largest in the islands, said today none of the "sick" officers had returned to work on Monday night's overnight shift.

Earlier Monday, Circuit Judge Arthur Fong issued a 10-day restraining order directing members of the State of Hawaii Organization of Police Officers (SHOPO) to halt their walkout and return to work immediately.

Nearly all of the state's policemen who are not supervisors are members of SHOPO.

The court action was sought by the Hawaii Public Employment Relations Board, which ruled the so-called police "sickout" an illegal strike. The board contended in court that the strike posed a threat to public health and safety.

Despite the sickout action, there was no major increase in crime.

Honolulu police reported a couple of homicides and a few robberies and assaults, but officers agreed that it was did not represent a jump in crime and noted no case that could have been tied to the absence of a full police force.

"Members of the community are acting as good, responsible citizens," Assistant Honolulu Police Chief Edwin Ross said.

The police walkout is seen as a show of strength to back the police group's attempt to win a new two-year contract from the counties.

Potential successor to Desai emerges

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Former deputy premier Charan Singh emerged today as the clear front-runner in a battle to take over from caretaker Prime Minister Morarji Desai.

Singh, a 76-year-old former finance minister and leader of northern India's farmers, claimed the support of 300 members of India's Parliament.

But President Sanjiva Reddy told Singh to produce evidence of the support, said to include 91 members of Singh's new breakaway Janata group, 75 members of the official Congress Party, 71 of the Congress Party of former prime minister Indira Gandhi, and 42 leftists.

Falls rock plunge now 'a certainty'

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — The forces of nature are at work forging a new shape for the famed Horseshoe Falls of the Niagara Falls tourist attraction, U.S. scientists say.

The engineer who installed a seismic monitoring system on Goat Island at Niagara Falls nine years ago said Monday the only certainty about a predicted rock fall near Horseshoe Falls is that it will occur.

"We can't stop it, but we'd like to know before it falls," Robert Anderson of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' geotechnical laboratory in Vicksburg, Miss., said. "This has been going on for thousands of years.

Asked how dangerous the fall of thousands of tons of rock might be, Anderson said he didn't know. However, he said a major sloughing off stone could create a wave large enough to capsize boats, such as the Maid of the Mist, which carry sightseers near the foot of the cataract.

A seismic alarm was tripped Friday when movement beneath the falls stretched a stainless steel wire more than half a centimetre.

U.S. government geologists warned Monday that there is a "serious possibility" that sub-surface rock movement might trigger the most massive rockslide in the falls' modern history.

A possible slide of as much as 200,000 to 300,000 tons of rock could create a new face for the Horseshoe Falls, said Thomas Wilkinson of the corps of engineers. He warned the Niagara Frontier State Parks Commission to hold off on plans to blast away a portion of unstable rock.

Anderson installed the seismic warning system which set off the alarm, which indicated a shift of rocks at Terrapin Point, a narrow peninsula of U.S. land which juts out into the Niagara River above the falls.

Technicians have not been able to determine the rate and amount of movement in the rock since the alarm, apparently because the system, installed in 1971, had fallen into disrepair. Only one of three sensors at Terrapin Point was found to be working.

The alarm, the first since the equipment was put in, was deemed even more newsworthy because of the recent predictions of rock slides by two U.S. psychics.

Meanwhile, Niagara Falls Mayor Michael C. O'Laughlin said he hopes to be aboard the Maid of the Mist about 4 p.m. Sunday, the time predicted by psychic Pat St. John of Bridgewater, Conn., for a sudden release of water over the falls and the swamping of the boat.

"I don't have much faith in psychic predictions," O'Laughlin said.

The mayor said the publicity from the predictions might stimulate tourism, which has been hurt by the gasoline shortage.

IMPORTANT!

THE NAME GAME
Rules and Procedures

Object of "The Name Game": To become eligible for prize drawings by matching letters of the alphabet, published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, with the letters in your name. Each game starts with a Saturday Times and ends in the Sunday Colonist two weeks later. The official entry form will be published every day. All members of a family may play. There is no age limit. You may enter more than once but only one entry per envelope may be submitted. As each game ends, you are invited to play the next game.

1. Using the official entry form or a reasonably hand-drawn facsimile (no mechanically reproduced forms accepted), start at the upper left hand corner and print your name continuously, one letter in each square, until all the squares are filled in. (For example, if your name is John Anderson, Sample 1 shows how to fill out your entry form.) Do not include punctuation.
Use your legal name, in a form which can be verified on your driver's licence, social security card or other official identification. You may use various forms of your first name (e.g. John, Jonathan or John S.), as long as your identity can be verified. No nicknames, please.
2. Letters for the Name Game will be published as follows: 4 letters Saturday Times and Sunday Colonist and 3 letters daily. When an official letter matches one in your diagram, circle it on your entry. That letter may appear in more than one square on your diagram, but you may circle only one such letter (of your choice) each time. Since individual letters are selected at random, they may appear more than once — even on the same day. You may circle one such letter as many times as that letter is published. The same letters will be published in the Victoria Times and The Daily Colonist, but may only be used once in any one entry.
3. When you match enough letters to complete one row on your diagram — horizontal, vertical or diagonal (corner to corner), as in Sample 2, you are eligible for the prize drawings for that game. Drawings for 15 prizes will be held every other week for 10 weeks. At each drawing $500 goes to the first name drawn, $100 to the next —, $50 each to the next 3, and $25 for the last 10 — (Winners must answer a time-limited skill-testing question before collecting prizes.) All names drawn will be returned to the drum for the grand prize drawing.
4. Mail your completed entry form to: The Name Game, Victoria Press, P.O. Box 1390, Victoria, B.C. V8W 3C4; postmarked no later than the Monday following the end of that game. Completed entries may also be delivered, in a sealed envelope, to Victoria Press, no later than Tuesday, the following day. The game number (such as 'Game 1', 'Game 2', etc.) must appear at the lower left-hand corner of the envelope.
5. All entries will be placed in a container and the winning entries will be drawn at random. Winners will be announced in the Colonist and Times on the Friday following the close of each game. The odds of winning will depend on the number of eligible entries received.
6. It is not necessary to buy the Times or Colonist to participate. Copies of the newspaper may be inspected free of charge at the newspaper's offices during regular business hours. Sorry, official letters will not be given over the phone.
7. Employees of the newspapers and members of their immediate families are not eligible to participate. Unclaimed or invalidly claimed prizes will be donated to a recognized charity at the close of the contest.
8. Winners agree to allow publication of their names, pictures and publicity in the Times and Colonist without additional consideration. Submission of an entry indicates acceptance of all game rules.
9. Decisions of Victoria Press judges in all matters relating to the The Name Game will be final.

Cat among the pigeons

Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis certainly put the cat among the pigeons with his weekend suggestion that Saanich should scrap the long-debated Royal Oak industrial site proposal.

Just when residents, politicians and businessmen were all convinced the decade-long Royal Oak controversy was finally over and the proposal was going ahead, Curtis, acting in his capacity as Saanich MLA, spoke out against it.

He said that the divisions the proposal is creating in the Saanich community and its council are not worth whatever benefits might be gained from the industrial site. Moreover, he noted, an industrial site in Central Saanich, (also in Curtis's riding) is searching for tenants. That site could be developed much further without causing the community conflict of Royal Oak.

Curtis has every right to speak his mind clearly and freely on the issue. It vitally affects many of the residents of his riding and is undoubtedly a major issue in the constituency. A statement from the local MLA to try to influence council is quite in order.

Difficulties may arise, however, if Curtis tries to use his position as a cabinet minister to force Saanich council to change its mind. Zoning is a matter totally regulated by local government, and the provincial government has no place in a local zoning controversy.

It is fair for any provincial departments involved (highways, perhaps, since the Pat Bay highway runs right along the proposed industrial site) to take a look at the project to ensure that no problems will occur later. Other than that, however, the province should keep its nose out.

A section of the Municipal Act does allow provincial intervention in zoning matters in truly extreme cases where the provincial public interest might be affected. This clause, however, should be used sparingly, and certainly not in a purely local issue of this sort.

On the other hand, Saanich council owes it to Curtis to examine thoroughly his objections to the industrial site, and even to reconsider the whole proposal should council think this warranted.

However, much of the controversy over Royal Oak was generated by countless hearings, reconsiderations and studies of the issue. A final decision one way or the other might do more to heal the splits in the community than more months spent on investigations and re-examinations.

Let Saanich look quickly but thoroughly at Curtis's objections, let council announce rapidly if it plans any further action, then let Curtis accept the decision of the locally elected officials with good grace.

Comox for refugees?

Somehow the idea of transporting thousands of Vietnamese refugees to Comox for resettlement in Canada seems to have sprung up in eastern Canada. At a time when unknown numbers of the "boat people" are fleeing Vietnam every day, many of them dying at sea because they are rejected by the neighboring countries of Southeast Asia, people want to do something, quickly.

It explains the spontaneous offers of material aid and assistance to those already here, or on their way. All across Canada, groups are organizing to help accommodate Canada's allotted quota of refugees. An Ontario MP came up with the idea of using Comox as a refugee camp.

Peter Stollery thinks it more important first to get them out of the unhealthy, overcrowded camps in Malaysia, Thailand and Hong Kong, then worry later about problems of adjustment and settlement across Canada.

The plan is a product of imaginations working overtime in the absence of official direction at the top in Ottawa. The motive behind it is admirable, but that doesn't make it any more attractive or feasible.

Why Comox, of all places? Merely because it is closer to Southeast Asia than the rest of Canada? In the age of sailing ships that would mean something. But today the jets that will bring the refugees out of Asia can as easily fly on a few more hours to eastern Canada — where the majority of them are going to be resettled anyway. Comox is a long way from the principal immigration offices in Vancouver, whose staff will have to deal with the refugees on a daily basis for several months.

It's an ingenious but misdirected and impractical idea. Such brainwaves might not capture national attention, however, if the federal government could be seen doing something to speed up the transfer of Vietnamese refugees Canada has agreed to take.

On the benches

I extend a cordial invitation to our city's leaders for a luncheon date on any mild sunny day.

A box lunch will be provided and we can bask in the sun amid the tourist attraction on Government and View Streets where the elite of our city live on the lovely benches provided by our beautiful city, decorated with shrubs and flowers (replanted regularly due to destruction). I stress noon as some of the inhabitants don't arise before noon and if there are more than one or two still sleeping we would be unable to sit on the benches.

The entire scene is deplorable. I am safe in saying nine out of 10 visitors drive or walk past the eyesore, not to mention the hundreds of Victorians who work in the area and walk ankle deep in the broken glass, garbage, and filth every morning to get to work so that we may support those leeches of society.

At least three or four mornings a week the doorways in the area must be hosed down of vomit and urine, an absolute must to start any employees' day off right. Next a call to city hall to remove the filth from the streets and around the planters.

I do not recall our judicial system removing the vagrancy law or the law covering open drinking in public and I believe there is a harassment law which would cover the foul language passerbys are subjected to daily. However the patrol cars cruise by blind to the sleeping bodies, the open bottles of liquor passed around and apparently oblivious to the filth, and destruction. — Mrs. M. Pinalski, 2946 Mount Wells Drive.

When whistle goes

I recently attended the high school graduation ceremony of my youngest child. At the ceremony a well-liked teacher who had recently received a position in the department of education returned especially to make the ceremonial address. Referring to her own experience, she urged the students to seek out meaningful, creatively expressive work.

It was a similar speech to what I had heard at the graduation ceremonies of my other children. And every time I hear it I get just a little mad. Not that I doubt the sincerity of the teachers. But it is just a bit ivory towerish and in a way, a sinister refinement of the so-called protestant work ethic.

Not withstanding that what may seem creative to one may seem dull and repetitive to another, there is little employment that fits within these teachers' definition and getting to be less and less all the time. Even some teachers are finding circumstances forcing them into practices and patterns that they formerly despised, and probably still do.

The fact is that these young people will be lucky to find employment of any kind and at least 90 per cent of it will not fit within the definition of the teachers' lofty aims.

To be sure, it is fine for that small minority who achieve something close to the teacher's ideals. But ideals should be in relation to reality. Most of them will drift into uncreative jobs. For them not to achieve the lofty ideal, must give them a sense of a degree of failure and lack of self-worth. And ironically for something that is largely out of their control. For these students, the teacher has done a considerable disservice — a legacy of a future feeling of inadequacy. These young people should be told the way it really is. That most of them will not find what can be defined as personally meaningful employment. That the best many of them can do is find something they can tolerate, that will be adequate to live on.

Today's reality, so put, may seem all doom and gloom but it is not necessarily so. Once the reality is told, the reason for its existence can be investigated and creativity and self expression not necessarily completely negated. As some have discovered, it begins when the quitting whistle blows. — Larry Tickner, 589 Nora Place.

Booming business

Victoria's tourist business is booming, and that's happy news for the whole community because of the visitor industry on our economy. More than ever visitors are complimentary in their remarks about our city and the courtesy of Victoria residents.

Many Victorians are "going the extra mile" to create new ideas and expand on old ones to make our city a more exciting and enjoyable place to visit. Via this letter I'd like to see them recognized.

Congratulation must go to the organizers of this year's outstanding Folkfest, which was a great combination of colorful costumes, exotic foods and lively music.

Kaleidoscope's tent theatre in the Inner Harbor is a great fun addition to the summer's entertainment scene.

The popular Undersea Gardens attraction is alive with flower baskets and flower boxes . . . and the costumed sentries who are on duty every day at Victoria's "Heritage Village" are attracting great visitor attention.

The people behind these projects are to be congratulated for their innovative ideas which are adding to Victoria's reputation as one of the most interesting cities in North America to visit. — Mel Cooper, President, Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Broken promise

In reply to a letter written by Mr. Hans Hartwig and published on July 6, (Look After Our Own) concerning the $2.25 million promised to the children of Vietnam, I would like to get a few facts straight.

The money was not intended to be given to a communist nation but to the children who suffer from the aftermath of war, children who know not the difference between democracy or communism but whose need is just as important regardless of where they live.

The money was indeed promised under the NDP government, but with the full support of all parties. This has been conveniently forgotten by Mr. Hans Hartwig in order to discredit the former NDP government, a ploy which by now we are all getting a bit sick and tired of.

It is a simple case of a broken promise and it should be rectified as soon as possible if the present Social Credit government wants to save any face at all. — Andre K. Pel, 101-1065 Burdett Avenue.

DAVID BRODER

Jimmy Carter gave an extraordinary speech

The speech he delivered to an expectant nation, after 10 days of isolation, may or may not rescue his faltering presidency, revive public confidence and set America on the road to energy independence.

But it will surely go down in history as one of the most extraordinary addresses a chief executive ever has given.

It was a speech that only Jimmy Carter could have given — the kind that made him so distinctive and effective a candidate in the early months of 1976. It was the kind of speech he had failed to give in his first 30 months as president.

It dealt with what he believes are the fundamentals. The character and spirit of the American people. The values that built the nation. The trust that must exist between the government and the governed.

The atmosphere he created from the desk in the Oval Office was that of the living rooms in Iowa and New Hampshire. The rhythm of his speech — the emphases and the pauses — made you think that in his mind's eye, Carter was not seeing the camera and teleprompter, but the faces of those early audiences — waiting for the nod of the head that told him they had understood and agreed with his last point.

As a result, on this most critical speech of his presidency, he delivered his text more effectively than he has ever done before. He avoided the sing-song rhythm, the misplaced stresses, and the falsetto squeaks that have marred past performances.

His voice was strong throughout, and, on occasions, ringing.

What he said was the kind of thing Americans have never heard from a president before. "This is not a message of happiness or reassurance," he declared, "but it is the truth and it is a warning."

Some of the hardest truths he uttered were about his own performance as president — reflecting the frank criticism he had invited and received from the outsiders he consulted at Camp David the previous 10 days.

He quoted the blunt comment they had made to him that "you're not leading this nation — you're just managing the government."

He set the stage for the promised shakeup of his administration by quoting the chilling comment that "some of your cabinet members don't seem loyal. There is not enough discipline among your disciples."

And he acknowledged that he has so far failed, not just to deal with the energy crisis, but with the distrust of Washington and the national government which, as a candidate, he said he would strive to overcome. "The gap between our citizens and our government,"he confessed, "has never been so wide."

In a passage that is critical to his prospects for political rehabilitation, he tried to put himself again on the side of the citizens affronted by the spectacle of Washington's paralyzed government.

"What you see too often in Washington . . . is a system of government that seems incapable of action. . . . a congress twisted and pulled in every direction by hundreds of well-financed and powerful special interests. . . . Often you see paralysis, stagnation and drift. You don't like it, and neither do I."

These criticisms were common refrains of the Carter campaign, but they came Sunday night, not from an outsider, but from the head of government, a president who has failed thus far to establish a comfortable working relationship with a congress of his own party.

Early in his term, he had threatened to go over the heads of congress but was usually dissuaded from doing so. Sunday night, when his own standing in the country had never been lower, he reached into the living rooms with a fervent plea for help from the homefolks in moving the congress to act.

The energy program he outlined Sunday night was, as his aides had indicated in advance, devoid of dramatic surprises.

The keystone pledge to hold imports to the 1977 level is at most a soft bite on the bullet. That was the peak year of imports. Last year was lower and this year is expected to be lower again. The pledge to cut imports by 50 percent by 1990 is tougher — but it is also more remote.

The program for production of synthetic and exotic fuels is ambitious — but its total costs were left unclear by Carter. Nothing was said of the future of nuclear energy — a highly controversal question. Nothing was said of tion. These are facts — and we simply must face them."

What Carter did convey — more clearly and probably more convincingly than in all his previous discussions of the energy issue — was the fundamental fact the American people have been most reluctant to accept: "The energy crisis is real. . . . It is a clear and present danger to our nation. These are facts — "and we simply must face them."

It is his belief that by accepting the challenge of energy dependence as real and striving to overcome it, America can regain its lost sense of purpose and find a cause in which to unite.

There is, however, as he well knows, no issue which is more divisive — between the regions, between producers and consumers, between regulators and entrepreneurs, between free market advocates and believers in federal controls.

It is on this issue that Carter has staked his presidency.

A more cautious politician probably would have chosen another issue — almost any other issue — by which to be judged.

The tactic is in character for Carter, just as much in character as Sunday night's extraordinary mixture of personal self-criticism and patriotic-religious preaching.

If Carter had played politics by cautious, conventional rules, he almost certainly would have spent the last four years running a peanut business in Plains.

Carter brought the message down from Camp David, the site of the greatest success of his presidency, the negotiation of the Egyptian-Israeli peace agreement.

And he delivered his speech, as he reminded his listeners in the opening sentence, on the third anniversary of his acceptance of the Democratic presidential nomination.

'I will act'

He said that "our nation has seen a failure of leadership. We've been hurt and we've been disillusioned . . . We've been without leadership too long."

Sunday night, he came as close as anyone in office can to confessing that the same failure had characterized his own conduct of the presidency.

But he asked people to believe that was about to change. "I promise you," he said, "that I will lead our fight. I will enforce fairness in our struggle. I will ensure honesty. And above all, I will act."

The polls and his personal counselors have been telling him — with increasing urgency — that action is what the public demands.

Sunday night, the people heard the promise.

Starting this week, they will measure again the performance.

National Film Board a 'disaster' for Canada?

By ROBERT FULFORD

The re-appearance this season of the late John Grierson's writings about film, Grierson On Documentary, edited by Forsyth Hardy, will likely produce yet another wave of praise for this pivotal figure in Canadian history. But it should also force us to look seriously at what Grierson did to Canada.

His creation of the National Film Board during the Second World War has always been seen as one of the happiest events in our culture. Till then, no Canadian institution dealing with the arts had been internationally respected. Grierson led the NFB to the heights of documentary film-making, and in the process became a hero to a generation of Canadian directors and cameramen. The NFB then as now — it celebrates its 40th anniversary this year — was known in parts of the world where no other aspect of Canadian culture had ever been noticed.

But there is also an argument to be made for the idea that Grierson's arrival on our shores was one of the greatest disasters that has ever befallen our always shaky culture.

Martin Knelman's valuable book on Canadian movies, This Is Where We Came In, walks cautiously up to this point by explaining how Grierson scorned fiction films with actors in favor of "real" life as shown in short documentaries. But Knelman steps back from what may be the horrible truth: That Grierson, with his dour insistence on his version of reality, may have done us more harm than good.

John Grierson . . . a special version of reality

Grierson praised quiet truths told quietly, as against the noise and glamor and spectacle of the fiction films that came from Paris, London, Berlin — and the hated Hollywood. He liked to say things like "Speaking intimately and quietly about real things and real people will be more spectacular in the end than spectacle itself." That's the line that runs through Grierson on Documentary; it was his version of Holy Writ, and dozens of his followers in Canada went on preaching it long after he retired to Scotland.

But what was the "real" Canada that Grierson's NFB showed us in wartime? It was a version of reality that the federal government could whole-heartedly approve. It was Canada scrubbed clean of conflicts and nuances. Canada Carries On, the famous series of shorts that played in all our movie houses, presented a nation proudly united in pursuit of victory. It showed no French-Canadians complaining bitterly about being dragged into a war for which they lacked enthusiasm. It showed no English Canadians exasperated by the Mackenzie King government's endless double talk about conscription. It showed no draft dodgers, no black marketeers, no persecuted Japanese Canadians.

The NFB in wartime had one client, the King government, and what it produced — with the most admirable skill — was the King government's propaganda. John Grierson brought high-class cinematic lying to Canada.

The playwright John Mortimer, writing in a recent issue of the New Statesman, recalls his own wartime days as a writer of government films in Britain. He deplores what he then accepted as part of the war effort, and he finds Grierson's view of documentary repellent — especially when Grierson makes outlandish agitprop statements like "in times of great change the only songs worth writing are marching songs." Mortimer adds: "The truth told about wartime in England by documentary films was . . . even less courageous than the truth told about 1930s America by the box-office movies which Grierson despised."

But Grierson's influence in Britain remained marginal. To Britain, with its centuries of dramatic tradition, the documentary style was just another way of looking at the world. In Canada, however, there were no dramatic traditions, so documentary became central. In a sense it was all we had. In a sense it is still all we have.

In our films of the 1970s, just as in the Grierson-produced films of the 1920s, the real angers and passions of Canadians seldom emerge. The filmmakers, who are the children and grandchildren of Grierson, are still re-making the propaganda movies of the 1940s, still anxiously proving that they can "tell the story" of Canada in a way that is socially acceptable. Even artists who have never heard Grierson's name are living under his influence.

The documentary tradition teaches that the story of a film, if in fact there is to be one, emerges honestly and directly from "the human material," rather than from the imagination of a writer — which may be why we have produced almost no good writers of movie scripts. Again and again we are presented with ambitious Canadian films (the CBC's Riel is a perfect example) which lack nothing except a writer's skill and therefore lack everything. In Allan Moyle's current The Rubber Gun, about some young drug dealers in Montreal, the characters are trying so hard to be "real" that they never manage to turn their little story into a movie.

It's never easy, in reading Grierson On Documentary, to understand just what sort of society he wanted; his politics were not specific. But it's clear that he conceived of artists as foot soldiers in some sort of war for a better world, and he left that dangerous notion embedded in our culture. To this day it is a Griersonite tone that informs the pronouncements of Canadian Artists Repesentation, or the Council of Canadian Filmmakers, or ACTRA; or any of the other lobbyists for Canadian culture. Like Grierson, they urge us to support them because they'll make a better country for us. It is a do-gooder's approach that Grierson left behind him, an approach that has very little to do with the passions and pleasures of genuine art.

'New bunch of thieves' takes over in Iran

By WILLIAM BRANIGIN
Washington Post

TEHRAN - Despite the campaign of Iranian revolutionaries against corruption under the shah, the Islamic republic is proving to be fertile ground for graft, bribes and rip-offs.

Far from being eradicated under the leadership of Ayatollah Khomeini, corruption in Iran still permeates many of the same official organizations that it did under Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and is rife in some new ones, notably Khomeini's revolutionary committees, "komiteh," which fields thousands of gunmen and runs local affairs in many communities.

"It's a new bunch of thieves, with a little less finesse," a diplomat said.

"Corruption is worse in that it is no longer systematic," a banker said. "Nobody knows what the rules are anymore. You have a new set of opportunists around who are using their imagination to levy whatever they think the traffic will bear."

Khomeini seems aware of the problem. He has warned his followers against showing the "ugly face of Islam," but so far his words have gone unheeded by many of those who constitute the new powers-that-be.

"What is important to me is not property, not the finances of the treacherous people," he pointedly told a group of revolutionary guards who came to visit him in the holy city of Qom recently.

"If the 'komitehs' do not act according to the precepts of Islam, and if the clergy who are at the head of society do not act with care, and if the government and army do not act with care . . . an ugly face of Islam will be reflected abroad."

More graft

Nevertheless, the problem of graft seems to be getting worse, according to Iranian and foreign sources here.

It is particularly serious in the customs administration and Iran's equivalent of the Internal Revenue Service, sources say.

Recently, for example, the tax department of the finance ministry asked companies to come forward with their own tax assessments for the turbulent period last year when the government was paralyzed. If the returns were "reasonable," companies were told they would not be questioned.

"A lot of companies did step forward," a banker said, "and right away the bargaining started" as officials demanded bribes for not arbitrarily assessing higher taxes.

In the customs administration, Iranians and foreigners report, officials routinely demand bribes to facilitate imports and allow people to ship their household goods out of the country.

One of the most extensive rackets, sources say, is the expropriation of property belonging to people who have been executed, jailed or fled the country. But increasingly, it seems, ordinary citizens are seeing their property confiscated or, in some cases, are being forced to pay protection money to armed men acting under the authority of the committees.

According to a senior official in one Tehran committee, members of the "Bonyade Mostazafin" or Poor Peopole's Foundation, have profited from the auction of royal family belongings. He cited the sale last month of property the shah's older sister, Princess Shams, at her ornate palace near Karaj, west of Tehran.

Organizers of the auction, which was not widely publicized beforehand, participated in the bidding and went away with expensive cars, gold and silver tea services, silverware and jewelry "for a song," the committee member said.

Authorities have not yet diclosed what will become of other property expropriated from wealthy industrialists and businessman. "This is one of the deep dark secrets of the revolution," an economist said.

Car seized

In one recent instance, a group of Iranians were having a dinner party when a band of committee gunmen arrived and asked who owned a Chevrolet parked outside. One of the guests said it was his. The gunmen then charged it had been used to attack their committee headquarters, demanded the keys at gunpoint and drove the car away.

In another case, militiamen came to the home of a former senator and demanded a large sum of money not to arrest him. Shortly after the money was paid, however, another group came along and arrested him anyway.

Committee militiamen have also profited from the exodus of foreigners who often have problems with landlords and customs officials when they try to move out.

"The komiteh helps work out a compromise, the komiteh is part of that compromise," a foreign resident said. "They have to get their chop on everything that moves."

A major source of revenue for corrupt committee members, according to informed sources here, has been the sale of weapons and liquor.

"The komitehs are the greatest fences for guns and booze," a diplomat said. He asserted they even supplied weapons to some members of autonomy-seeking regional minorities involved in recent clashes with government forces.

A prime example of committee corruption has been the behavior of militiamen "guarding" the U.S. Embassy. The bearded leader of the original squad that moved in after the Feb. 14 guerrilla attack on the embassy has expropriated goods from the mission's commissary and taken a cut from the sale of embassy liquor stocks to other embassies in Tehran, according to informed sources.

Another racket at the embassy has involved the issuance of tourist visas to Iranians. Since the U.S. consular offices are closed, the embassy arranged to give out visas through local Iranian travel agents. Then officials discovered the agencies were charging up to $300 for an applicant to be put on the waiting list, and the service was dropped.

Jailers bribed

Although they are difficult to confirm, more stories are surfacing about demands by prison officials for bribes to obtain the release of jailed Iranians.

Although corruption in the new regime is widespread, it is probably not as massive as the graft under the shah, and there have been numerous cases of of "good deeds," residents say. For every instance of gunmen robbing houses in the name of a local mosque or committee, there have been others in which belongings have been stored or protected.

But observers wonder whether these examples will be enough to keep the face of Iran's Islamic Revolution growing yet uglier.

Building a better world

Russell Baker

Fellow calls up and orders a world. We make him one. That's our business. Universal World Builders Inc. We build a world faster than you can get radio emissions from a black hole.

Anyhow, we get the job pretty well finished. Put in some real nice oceans, some air, stock the thing with beasts and fowl and fish — you know, the usual equipment. Then lay in some gravity to keep it all from floating off into the next galaxy, when he drops by and says, "This is all very well, but where are you going to put the oil?"

"What oil?" says I.

"The oil that will make the cars go round," says he.

"Excuse me," says I, "but you didn't say anything about cars. You only mentioned beasts and fowl and fish." If he wants cars, it is going to cost him well over estimates. Well, this makes him boil. How do we suppose the beasts are going to get around, he wants to know, if they've got no cars?

And how do we suppose the beasts are going to haul around the fish and the fowl they catch after vigorous sport in the oceans and the forests? says he. They can carry them in their paws, says I.

"You are living in the age of the primeval slime," says he. "I am talking about up-to-date, modern beasts which will burn rubber and enjoy themselves by sitting in the cave watching other beasts on a box discover rapid relief from their headaches."

If he wants cars, I tell him, he will have to pay, which puts him in a rage. "I will take this up with God," he says. Well, you know what that means. Investigators crawling over all the materials looking for defective work. Papers to be filed. Appeals, reversals, spiraling costs. The full catastrophe of regulation.

"Riley," I tell my foreman, "put some oil into this world so the beasts can burn rubber and enjoy themselves watching headaches get cured."

This restores some peace around the shack until a few days later this bird comes in again. He says do we have a hole in our head, and I top him by saying no, and what's more we don't even have a hole in the world anymore as we have just finished putting in the oil and sealed up the last one.

"You were supposed to put the oil under the cars," says he, "and look where that Riley idiot has put it."

"Where?" says I.

"Under the Arabs," says he.

"Aren't Arabs going to burn rubber and watch headaches cured?" says I.

"Of course not," says he. Arabs are going to haul fish and fowl aboard camels and abstain from alcohol, whereas the cars are going to grow on the other side of the world.

I call in Riley. "Didn't you look at the blueprint?" I ask him. "Didn't you notice that the cars are all going to be 10,000 miles from the Arabs where you put the oil?"

Riley blows his stack. Sure he looked at the blueprints. And there where the cars were going to be, everything was already packed in. We'd put the coal in there and the fancy shops and hotels, and what with having to leave open space for cemeteries and the cars to romp around on, there wasn't any place left over for oil, except maybe the Luray Caverns, and if he filled up places like that with oil, where would the beasts have to go on an outing when they wanted to burn rubber because they were tired of watching fast headache relief?

The client wasn't impressed. He'd asked for a world and we made him a mess, says he.

"You're not taking delivery?" says I.

"You can sue," says he.

In short, it's either put myself in the hands of the lawyers or take a whopping loss on a custom-built world on which I'll be lucky to get 10 cents on the dollar once a buyer finds out the oil is under the Arabs.

"You know, boss," says Riley, "those cars on the other side of the world are going to want oil so bad they'll make a rich man out of anybody smart enough to get that oil out from under the Arabs and into their rubber burners."

"Riley," says I, "that idiot knew a genius when he saw one."

"Yeah," says Riley, "why are we going broke building worlds on spec when we are sitting on an oil mine?"

That's how we happened to change our line of work. Riley is a sheik now, and I operate an international oil company, not to mention several important governments. Keeps us both busy burning a lot of rubber, but when we need fast relief from a headache all we've got to do is raise oil prices again, then sit in the cave watching the beasts scream on the picture box.

Boycott planned on uranium study

KELOWNA (CP) — Representatives for public interest groups which are demanding a moratorium on uranium exploration in B.C. say they will boycott a royal commission into uranium mining in the province to press their point.

More than 40 delegates from 19 groups including the Canadian Coalition for Nuclear Responsibility, the Alliance Against Uranium Mining, the United Church and Greenpeace, also demanded Saturday that the commission expand its terms of reference.

Group spokesmen said they want the inquiry to also consider economic, ethical and social issues relating to uranium mining before they will continue to participate in the provincial inquiry.

The groups must have the boycott ratified by their memberships before they can take action, spokesmen said.

Ratification from the groups' membership is still required.

"Some of these include physical occupation of the Beaverdell Blizzard property, (85 kilometres east of Kelowna) controlled by Norcen Energy Resources; house calls on individuals by doctors to teach the health dangers associated with uranium mining and possible legal action against uranium mining companies for exploration without regulation standards in B.C.," the groups said in a release.

Commission chairman Dr. David Bates has said he hopes to deliver an interim report to the government in August with recommendations on uranium exploration and the commission expects to complete its final report in July, 1980.

Before the judge

A man who pleaded guilty June 18 to a break-in at Sears was jailed seven months by Judge Blake Allan in provincial court Monday.

Garbor Varga, 23, of 634 McCaskill, was charged after he was caught inside the department store at about 3:30 a.m. June 9 by cleaning staff.

Varga had collected 65 rings worth $4,647.87 when caught.

"I'd just come from a party and was very drunk and not in control of myself," Varga told the court after he pleaded guilty.

He had a previous conviction July 27, 1976, in Victoria for fraud and received a three-month jail sentence.

Martin Kelly Knight, 815 Carey, was charged with breaking and entering a residence at 244 Hartland.

He was remanded in custody until Wednesday for election of his trial method.

Three of nine persons arrested following drug raids Sunday on two city houses appeared briefly.

Victoria police, armed with search warrants, entered 1125 Fort early Sunday morning and arrested six persons. Three more were arrested at 540 Manchester.

The three from the latter raid, Joseph Ronald Puharski, John Pajic and Cam Randall, appeared before Ostler.

Puharski, 22, was charged with possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking. He was released on his own recognizance in the sum of $1,000 and remanded until next Monday for election of his trial method.

Pajic, a 20-year-old from Winnipeg, pleaded guilty to simple possession of marijuana and was fined $100.

Randall also was charged with simple possession of marijuana and pleaded not guilty. He was remanded until next Monday to fix his trial date.

The other six are expected to be charged with possession of cocaine.

A Sidney woman who had more than $1,000 on her when she stole swim suits and a skirt from Woodwards on July 3 was fined $200.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court Linda Ruth Coleman, 23, of 10346 Bowerbank, was spotted putting swim suits into her handbag and leaving the store without paying.

When the handbag was checked, a skirt for which she hadn't paid also was found. Total value of the goods, Lang said, was $116.

He said the woman, who pleaded guilty, had $1,380 on her when arrested.

Judge Gilbert Hogg sentenced a 49-year-old man to 14 days in jail for impaired driving.

Camille Frederick Cyr, 946 Dunford, who pleaded guilty, also was placed on six months probation.

Crown counsel Wayne Smith said the incident occurred about 8:35 p.m. Feb. 14 when Cyr was behind a Colwood RCMP vehicle in the Westbrook shopping mall. Cyr honked at the police car, indicating he wanted it out of the way, and proceeded ahead of the officer.

He was stopped a short distance down the road and was taken back to the Colwood RCMP detachment where two breath test readings of .29 were obtained.

Cyr had three previous, related convictions.

Ostler handed out fines totalling $1,110 for 74 parking tickets which dated back to June 16, 1977.

Angus McGladrie, who sent his wife to represent him in court, entered guilty pleas to 53 tickets in 1977 and 21 more in 1978. Not guilty pleas were entered on another five traffic tickets and a trial date of Oct. 1 was set to hear those.

Ostler, who had to read out every ticket, levied $15 on each of the convictions.

Fined for drinking-driving offences were: Wilfred Roger Lorteau, 37, of 2045 Chartres, $1,000; and Brian John David Birks, 20, of 1718 Leighton, $500.

Huge clot killed girl

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A blood clot three inches in diameter caused the death of a 10-year-old girl four days after she was hit on the head by a softball, a coroner's jury was told Monday.

Pathologist Dr. James McNaughton told the inquest that Deborah Jane Cunningham of Kamloops died of pressure inside her skull caused by a swollen brain and the clot.

McNaughton said the inch-thick clot could not be spotted on x-rays. He also said there were no marks on the outside of the girl's head.

Raymond Cunningham told the jury that his daughter was watching her 13-year-old brother and a friend play softball in their backyard April 8 when she was struck by the softball above the right temple.

Cunningham said Deborah ran crying into the house, but had no bump or bruise and soon returned outside to play.

The next day, he said, she came home from school early complaining of a headache and was taken to the family doctor.

She went to school April 10, but still had a headache and also was vomiting and seemed to be sleepy, Cunningham said.

Deborah was taken to hospital where she was examined by a doctor, x-rays were taken, and she was sent home. She was found dead in her bed the next morning.

Plunge kills window washer

VANCOUVER (CP) — An inquest has been called into the death of a window washer who fell 13 storeys to his death when the scaffolding shifted while he was working on a city apartment tower.

Gerard MacInnes, 25, was a native of Prince Edward Island who had lived in Vancouver for the last several years. His island hometown was not available.

Two to fight drug charges

PENTICTON (CP) — Two Vernon men charged with conspiracy to traffic in marijuana entered pleas of not guilty and elected trial by judge alone in provincial court Monday.

Albert Eugene Cerenzie and John Edward Knapper were bound over for a preliminary hearing in county court Oct. 29.

$22M for Fraser flood control

The provincial government will spend $22 million during the next five years protecting Lower Fraser Valley agricultural land from floods, Environment Minister Rafe Mair said Monday.

Mair said in a news release that $20 million is for construction of a new pumphouse and dam on the Sumas River while the remainder will go for dike improvement along the Vedder Canal.

N-plants okay — elsewhere

Few Victorians oppose nuclear power plants — as long as they are in somebody else's back yard, according to a post Three-Mile Island survey conducted by Defence Minister Allan McKinnon.

The Victoria MP said his latest questionnaire to constituents showed 39 per cent said nuclear power production should be increased while 30 per cent said it should stay at present levels. Only 17 per cent said it should be reduced.

At the same time, only 31 per cent would support construction of a nuclear power plant near Victoria.

About 37 per cent would oppose it and another 32 per cent would feel anxious to have a nuclear power plant for a neighbor.

On other topics, Victorians favored by 79 per cent the calling of federal elections every four years on a fixed date.

A majority said bilingualism should be related to local population distribution rather than having official status across Canada.

Phillips mum on coal deal

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips has refused to make public details of a tentative deal reached between the government and British Petroleum over the development of the northeast coal fields.

Under questioning in the legislature Monday from Stu Leggatt (NDP — Coquitlam-Moody) Phillips said an agreement has been reached, but it hasn't gone before cabinet.

It is only an agreement at the staff level, he said.

The minister refused to answer further questions from Leggatt, but did indicate the terminus for shipping the coal when it is developed would be Prince Rupert rather than Roberts Bank.

Running the coal to Roberts Bank would help the financially-plagued B.C. Rail while a Prince Rupert route would benefit the Canadian National Railway, Leggatt said.

When the deal is made it will be a good one for B.C. and for Canada, Phillips said.

Sechelt line not settled

Environment Minister Rafe Mair said today the route of the controversial new 500-kv B.C. Hydro line through the Sechelt Peninsula has not yet been settled.

Mair will fly into the area on Monday to look over Hydro's preferred route and other possibilities favored by citizen groups.

Don Lockstead (NDP — Mackenzie), who has sided with residents in opposing Hydro's suggested route, pressured Mair in the legislature Monday to make public a study on the route which Lockstead says is highly critical of the Hydro proposal.

Lockstead said the ecological-environmental-economic study was prepared by a University of B.C. economist for the ministry and should be made public.

But Mair in refusing to release the findings said the study was prepared by a staff member as an internal report and will remain a confidential interim document.

Lockstead said he learned the report is devastating from the environmental and economic point of view.

"Why does the minister want to keep it secret?" he asked reporters outside the house.

Lockstead said the line to supply much-needed power to Vancouver Island will cost closer to $615 million, not the $350 million first estimated by Hydro.

Regardless of the final location through the peninsula, the line will definitely go ahead, Mair said. Only the Sechelt route remains to be determined.

Pulp men moving to peace

Striking pulp workers at two mills in remote north-central B.C. voted Monday on a tentative agreement that could herald labor peace in the province's crucial forest industry for the next two years.

The Canadian Paperworkers Union have refused to recommended either acceptance or rejection of a proposed industry-wide master contract until local issues at the two mills in Mackenzie, about 160 kilometres north of Prince George, are resolved.

The union did, however, endorse an agreement hammered out in Mackenzie by union and industry negotiators during the weekend.

Indications from other locals of the industry's second-largest union are that the master contract is on its way to acceptance by a good majority of its 7,500 members and approval of the Mackenzie pact would seal the agreement. Results of the province-wide vote are expected Wednesday.

Local-by-local results of voting by the 40,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America also indicate that the master contract was being endorsed by a hefty majority of the industry's largest union.

Complete results are not expected until July 24, but union president Jack Munro said Monday that an unofficial count indicated the agreement is being approved by a vote of roughly 70 per cent.

The only note of discord over the master contract was heard from the smallest of the three forestry unions involved in negotiations, the 5,500-member Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada (PPWC).

The agreement was rejected by 51.6 per cent of PPWC members in results released Friday. Union officials said Monday they would wait for a meeting with industry representatives Wednesday before deciding on any further strike action.

The chance that the PPWC could shut down the industry seemed remote, however, due to the slim margin of the rejection vote and rulings by the provincial labor relations board that the union cease picketing at several plants where it had no members, a tactic designed to keep members of other unions off the job.

The master contract, basically the same for all three unions, is the richest ever offered by the industry. The two-year proposal calls for hefty increases in fringe benefits and wage increases of 90 cents an hour in the first year and 90 cents or 9.5 per cent — whichever is higher — in the second. The present base rate is $8.16 an hour.

The Mackenzie workers, members of two paperworkers' locals at Finlay Forest Products and B.C. Forest Mills, went on strike 10 days ago demanding isolation pay.

Dick Lester, president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, said management rejected northern pay on the grounds that it would affect the whole industry and was therefore not negotiable on the local level.

Water meeting slated

A special meeting of North Saanich's water committee will be held Wednesday to discuss a shortage of water in the northern part of the municipality.

Mayor George Westwood said today the temporary shortage during the hot spell is because the reservoirs can't be replenished overnight.

He said water pressure is as low as 30 pounds in some areas.

B.C. Ferries at Swartz Bay, he said, is adding to the problem by drawing water at inopportune times.

Westwood said the situation is similar to that in 1978 when the ferry coporation was co-operative

The Saanich Peninsula Water Commission has a permanent line constructed up to McTavish Road.

The commission will be considering in September continuing the line to Horth Hill near Swartz Bay and constructing a reservoir there.

Victims named

Shawnigan Lake RCMP have released the names of two men killed when their car plunged off the Trans-Canada Highway opposite the Good Shepherd Shelter near Mill Bay Sunday night.

They were Robert Ashley-Price, 27, of Parksville, and William David Henderson, 28, of Nanaimo.

A third passenger, Cindi Lee Roslin, 25, of Nanaimo was thrown out of the car as it rolled down an embankment and into some trees and is in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital with multiple head injuries.

Police can't explain the accident which occurred at about 6 p.m. in bright sunny, dry weather.

An inquest is expected to be held but no date has been set.

BROKEN LEG AND TWO FRACTURED RIBS were only injuries suffered by demolition man Stan Ogle, 41, of Leamington, England, when he fell from the roof of a house he was working on in that Warickshire town. Picture was taken by an amateur photographer who happened to be passing the site on his way to a newsagent's.

Charges 'unlikely'

Criminal charges are unlikely in the death late last fall of a premature baby in Victoria General Hospital, Victoria crown counsel Nick Lang said on Monday.

However, Lang said, he will suggest the matter be dealt with by way of inquest and intends to forward a recommendation to that effect to the attorney-general's ministry later in the month.

Lang made the comments after reviewing a city police investigation into the death of a 23-week-old baby that was born by caesarian section to a 33-year-old severely retarded woman last December. The baby died 11 hours after birth.

The investigation had been requested by B.C.'s chief coroner Dr. William McArthur who noted several unusual features of the case when it was first brought to his attention May 10.

Names of the mother and attending physician have not been released,

It is understood a request for an abortion had been turned down a few days before the delivery took place.

McArthur, in a recent interview, said he would likely order an inquest if the crown elected not to proceed with criminal charges.

He said the case could raise important legal, moral and social issues.

Smith former Mair partner

Douglas Smith, a Kamloops lawyer recently appointed to the board of directors of the government-owned B.C. Development Corp. is not a law partner of Environment Minister Rafe Mair as reported in The Times.

Smith is a partner in Mair's former firm of Mair, Horne, Janowski and Blair, of which Mair is no longer a partner although the firm retains his name.

Mair quit law Dec. 31, 1975 when he was elected to the legislature.

Smith joined the firm after that time.

Smith, however, is a close friend and was Mair's campaign manager both in 1975 and 1979.

His appointment to the BCDC board has attacked by opposition MLAs.

Mac attack set on downtown

With quarter-pounders loaded, the forces of Ronald McDonald announced today they are preparing to launch a Big Mac attack on downtown Victoria.

Earlier plans to establish a beachhead at Douglas and Courtney streets were scrapped in 1977, with some downtown defenders suggesting that Golden Arches would blot the city's image.

Ronald Marcoux, executive vice-president of McDonald's Restaurants of Canada Ltd.told the Times today his firm has bought a downtown Victoria building that now houses Saba Bros. Ltd., one of a Vancouver-based chain of fabric stores.

The Saba store is at 1130 Douglas, between Fort and View streets, and Marcoux described the building as "unique."

He said McDonald's will take possession Sept. 1, and architects are already working on a design he hopes will enhance the brick building's architectural features.

"There will be two floors and open stairways and that sort of thing," Marcoux said.

Local approval of preliminary plans was given three weeks ago, and by the time McDonald's takes possession, Marcoux hopes his firm can award the contract for renovation.

If all goes well, he said, the new location could be dishing out Happy Meals by Christmas.

Refugee airlift readied as ship charter weighed

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Ron Atkey announced Monday what he called a major breakthrough in transportation, processing and private sponsorship arrangements for Indochinese refugees.

He said arrangements have been made to use military aircraft and commercial aircraft and that the government still is studying the possibility of chartering a ship.

The precise effect of the arrangements were not immediately known. Atkey made no mention, in his written statement, of increasing the government-sponsored 1979 Indochinese refugee quota of 8,000.

He said only that the transportation will cover the current refugee movement plus "a substantial contingency reserve."

Atkey also announced that immigration officers have issued immigrant visas to 25 residents in Vietnam, permitting them to join relatives in Canada soon. And two Canadian visa officers arrived in Vietnam last week to begin interviewing others who want to come here under a family reunification program.

The announcements, contained in what was described as the first of a weekly series of reports on Indochinese refugee operations, said 4,319 refugees from Vietnam, Kampuchea, Laos and other Southeast Asian countries have settled in Canada since the beginning of the year.

The report said three more immigration officers are on their way to Southeast Asia to help an existing staff of 11 who are screening refugees in the dozens of camps in Singapore, Malaysia, Indonesia, Thailand, Hong Kong and the Philippines.

It said 123 local groups across the country have signed contracts to sponsor 293 refugees into Canada and 265 national groups have agreements to sponsor 1,311 refugees.

As of July 12, the report said, 4,323 of the government-sponsored quota of 8,000 have arrived. Another 521 sponsored by relatives here have arrived as well as 365 privately sponsored refugees.

A provincial breakdown of private sponsorships showed 665 in Ontario, 312 in Manitoba, 252 in British Columbua, 217 in Saskatchewan, 136 in Alberta, 14 in Quebec, six in Nova Scotia and two in Newfoundland. New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island had none.

Meanwhile, in Calgary, public response to plans by the fledgling Someone Cares committee to airlift 8,000 Vietnamese refugees to this city has been overwhelming, says Joe Caruana, committee chairman.

"We have no money in our hands right now but it's on its way," he said. "If we had the immigration forms now, we would have 100 applications for families by next week.

Red tape irritates shipbuilders

TORONTO (CP) — With orders at a nine-year low, Canadian shipbuilders have called for less red tape around promised contracts for federal government vessels.

In a brief to Economic Development Minister Robert de Cotret, the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association said contracts for most of the ferries, fishery vessels and icebreakers the government said in February, 1978, it would order have not been awarded.

"Surely there is a need to streamline and make less cumbersome the present procedures which appear to become progressively slower," said the brief.

Employment at the yards of the 23 association members is down to 11,000 from 14,000 in 1975.

The association also called for a continuation of a 20 per cent subsidy on vessels built or converted in Canada, saying the government support received by many foreign shipyards makes the subsidy necessary to compete in overseas markets.

The shipbuilders also want a freeze on imports on foreign-built ships.

Car $25,000 lighter

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec provincial police officers lost a speeding car they were chasing Monday night, but wound up recovering $25,000 stolen during a June 5 robbery at the main post office here.

Police said a sack containing $100, $50 and $20 bills was tossed from a late-model car being pursued by police for a speeding offence.

The money was from $234,000 taken by four armed men who broke into the home of a post office supervisor and forced him to let two of them into the registered mail section of the post office while his wife and daughter were held hostage by the other two.

Late last month, police recovered $8,000 and arrested two men in connection with the robbery.

Strike vote unanimous in St. John police row

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Police in this city of about 85,000 have voted unanimously in favor of strike action and will notify city officials of their intentions shortly, a union official said today.

The 200 police officers finished a strike vote shortly after noon and union officials were preparing to visit city hall, a spokesman for Local 61 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees said.

With the strike action approved, officers could legally leave their jobs as early as midday Wednesday.

The strike would be the second by a city police department in New Brunswick in the last two weeks. Earlier officers left their jobs in Bathurst and there were several nights of violence before the strike was settled.

Earlier, the police union president, Gerald Shannon, charged that the New Brunswick Cities Association was conspiring to remove from the province's municipal police their right to strike.

Shannon said the association was trying to provoke police into walkouts in order to muster public antagonism against police unions, making it easier for the province to take away strike rights.

Gas caps spark recall of Minis

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 3,000 Austin Minis will be recalled by Jaguar, Rover and Triumph of Canada for replacement of defective gas tank caps, the British company's national service manager said Monday.

Brian Green said in an interview from his Burlington, Ont., office that the recall will be in compliance with a recent transport department suggestion based on a Feb. 7 test at Phoenix, Ariz., which showed that Minis produced after 1978 have defective gas caps.

A transport spokesman said the tests conducted at the United States government automobile testing facility in Phoenix showed rear-end collisions cause the gas caps to pop off.

Impact-related compression of the Minis' gas tank may also cause fuel to gush out and present a serious explosion hazard.

Green said the cap replacements and modifications will begin at local dealerships when new parts are received from the United Kingdom. He could not say when that would be.

Softener ad claim needs test: Judge

TORONTO (CP) — A county court judge has decided that if Fleecy fabric softener really does soften the wash three times better than its competitors, as its manufacturer claims in a television commercial, then the manufacturer must prove its claim.

Judge Hugh Honsberger made that decision Monday at the start of the federal government's prosecution of Bristol-Myers Canada Ltd. under the Combines Investigation Act.

The government is taking the company to court under a section of the act which states that representations made to the public on the performance, efficacy or length of life of a product must be based on adequate and proper testing. The section also states that the proof of these statements lies upon the person making the representation.

MONTREAL (CP) — Prominent politicians and common citizens turned out Monday to pay their last respects to Senator Claude Wagner, who died last week after a long illness.

More than 1,000 people, including Prime Minister Joe Clark, attended the hour-long funeral service at the St. Joseph de Bordeaux Roman Catholic church in north-end Montreal.

Opening lead — king of spades.

Bridge is such an easy game — if you put your mind to it. Let's assume you get to six diamonds and West leads the king of spades. How should you play the hand?

At first sight, there seems to be nothing to the play. Without thinking much about the matter, you could win the king of spades with the ace and start to draw trumps by playing the A-K.

Unfortunately, West shows up with a singleton trump and eventually you go down one, losing a heart trick and a trump trick. This might lead you to think that the reason you lost the slam was because you ran into a 4-1 trump division.

In a sense this is true — the odds were about 3-to-1 against either opponent holding J-x-x-x of trumps — but even so you should make the slam.

To make the contract you must have the presence of mind to ruff a spade at trick two. (The reason you do this is that it may help you to overcome a 4-1 trump division if you happen to run into one.) You would next play the A-K of trumps, discovering that East started with the J-9-4-3.

You now have a problem of sorts, but it is not difficult to solve. All you have to do is continue to shorten your trump holding. You cash the A-K of hearts, lead a club to the king, ruff a spade, then lead a club to the ace and ruff another spade. As a result, your remining three cards are the five of hearts and Q-10 of trumps.

You then play your heart, not caring a whoop or a holler which defender wins the third heart. You're now sure to win the last two tricks with the Q-10 of trumps. It's just like we said at the start. Bridge is such an easy game!

'Public lacks facts about oil situation'

CALGARY (CP) — The public relations arm of the petroleum industry has concluded that "Canadians are seriously misinformed about some aspects of the oil and gas industry."

The Petroleum Resources Communication Foundation, which represents 120 oil and gas companies, expressed particular concern over opinion-poll results indicating that Canadians are excessively optimistic about domestic oil supplies.

When asked "Is Canada capable of producing more oil than it needs?" 60 per cent of 501 persons interviewed said yes, 15 per cent said no and 25 per cent had no idea.

"The facts are that Canada cannot produce the oil it needs and its per-capita reserves are declining every year," the foundation said in a statement given to The Canadian Press.

". . . Until Canadians realize that Canada's oil consumption is rising faster than the discovery of new reserves, political leaders will be faced with making unpopular decisions aimed at conserving energy supplies."

Foundation president Joe Dundas said the situtation means "the gallon of gasoline that you burn today cannot be replaced at that cost."

He said the problem of public misconceptions is compounded by erroneous ideas about the number of companies searching for oil and natural gas.

Of the 501, 53 per cent said they did not know, 37 per cent guessed that there are fewer than 11 companies exploring, eight per cent guessed various numbers from 11 to 99, one per cent guessed 100 and one per cent guessed several hundred.

About 700 companies are exploring in Canada for oil and gas, the foundation said.

"It is easy for Canadians to conclude that a few oil companies control the supply and price of oil," Dundas said, "but when Canadians realize that more than 700 companies are exploring for and producing oil, common sense will dictate that all these competing companies cannot possibly make agreements to the detriment of the consuming public."

The poll was conducted by telephone in May by Opinion Research Index of Calgary, using numbers randomly selected from telephone directories in 16 major cities. The polling agency said its method produces results accurate to within five percentage points, 95 per cent of the time.

Other findings:

— 73 per cent believed Canada can produce more natural gas than it needs, six per cent did not, 21 per cent didn't know. The majority is correct in this case, the foundation said.

— 63 per cent said Canada is self-sufficient in oil, while 23 per cent said it is not and 14 per cent didn't know. Canada is currently a net oil importer.

— 59 per cent correctly said Canadians pay less for gasoline than most other peoples, but 22 per cent thought Canadians pay more. The foundation noted that Toronto prices are about 22.4 cents a litre, compared with 40.5 cents in Britain, 68.3 cents in Italy and 71 cents in France.

— Six per cent said they, or other members of their households, own shares in an oil company. Regional percentages varied from nil in the Maritimes to 14 per cent on the Prairies.

— 39 per cent felt "positive" toward the oil industry while 23 per cent had a negative attitude.

The foundation took issue with replies to a question asking which of the following sets oil and gas prices: the federal government, the oil industry, governments of producing provinces or international markets. Percentage replies were, respectively, 22, 18, 8 and 35, with the rest not knowing.

"The correct answer is that prices are established by agreement between the federal and provincial governments," the foundation said, not mentioning the fact that respondents were not offered that choice of an answer.

Dundas commented that "if Canadians understand that the price for crude oil and natural gas is established by agreement between the provincial and federal governments, they will come to the realization that the oil industry has very little control over what people pay."

BATTERS LIKE KINGDOME FENCES . . . . . . COULD SMASH HOME-RUN RECORD

It'll be a different story against Ryan

SEATTLE (AP) — It won't take a king-sized swat to clear the fences of the Kingdome, so batters are looking forward to tonight's 50th all-star baseball game with unabashed anticipation.

Even though they'll face the major-league strikeout king, Nolan Ryan, the National League hitters surveyed the enclosed stadium Monday with happiness.

After banging a few practice balls into the bleachers, Davey Lopes, the Los Angeles Dodgers second baseman, observed:

"This is very conducive to hitting. Everybody in batting practice was trying to hit the ball over the wall to hear the oohs and aahs from the crowd. It will be a different story against Nolan Ryan."

Lasorda said he went to Carlton as his starter because the AL would send up a flock of left-handed hitters and he wanted a southpaw going against them the first three innings.

The nationally-televised game is to start at 5:40 p.m. PDT as the NL goes after its eighth straight triumph and 16th in 17 games. Over all, after 49 games, the NL has won 30 and the AL 18. There has been one tie.

Two years ago, Ryan refused a last-minute invitation to join the AL squad, thereby infuriating manager Billy Martin, who said last season he wouldn't choose the flame-throwing hurler "if he had a 40-0 record."

Ironically, Bob Lemon succeeded Martin in mid-1978, New York Yankees won the AL pennant and beat the Dodgers in the World Series. Thus Lemon chose the AL pitchers even though he was fired earlier this summer and Martin became manager again.

"It's nice to have (Ryan) pitching for me at least this one time," said Lemon, who has been prominently mentioned as the next manager of Cleveland Indians.

There will be no designated hitters in this game, so the pitchers bat ninth.

The AL batting order has shortstop Roy Smalley leading off, followed by third baseman George Brett, left fielder Don Baylor, right fielder Jim Rice, centre fielder Fred Lynn, first baseman Carl Yastrzemski, catcher Darrell Porter and second baseman Frank White.

The Kingdome is sold out at 58,960 — a record for the park which measures 316 feet down the foul lines, 357 down the power alleys and 410 to centre.

Many feel the all-star game record of six home runs will be broken, and some are even predicting as many as a dozen homers will driven out of the domed stadium. Six homers have been hit in all-star games on three occasions, in 1951 and 1971 at Detroit and in 1954 at Cleveland.

National League batters relished their times in the batting cage.

Gary Matthews of Atlanta Braves said: "You know how small it is when you are hitting. You hit it good and it's out. My thinking is to hit the ball hard and to guard against trying to undercut it. If you go up with the idea of hitting it up, you won't have much success."

Winfield took his batting practice and observed: "This is a small park. The ball seems to go out pretty easy. That doesn't mean it will happen in the game."

Lou Brock of St. Louis Cardinals commands much interest since he has announced he will retire after this season.

He isn't a starter, but Lasorda says "we will find a place to use him where he will benefit our club."

Each manager vowed he would use as many from the 28-man squads as possible, but Lemon said: "I feel just as Tommy does. We want to win."

In this game, pitchers are limited to three innings of action. Lasorda said Steve Rogers of Montreal Expos would follow Carlton. Lemon said he didn't know who would follow Ryan.

Indians quicker with pen than Mark's swift pitches

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 17-year-old West Vancouver baseball player has learned there is something speedier than his lightning-fast pitches — how quickly an American League club can recognize his potential and sign him up.

Mark Bajus, a fireballing left-handed pitcher, signed a contract Monday with the Cleveland Indians for a six-year term plus an option for an additional year. The contract also includes an undisclosed bonus for signing and pays for four years of schooling at any university in North America.

Bajus, who has been striking out as many as 20 batters a game this season as pitcher for a North Vancouver junior B team, was picked after attending an Indians' tryout camp at Nat Bailey Stadium here with about 20 other British Columbia hopefuls.

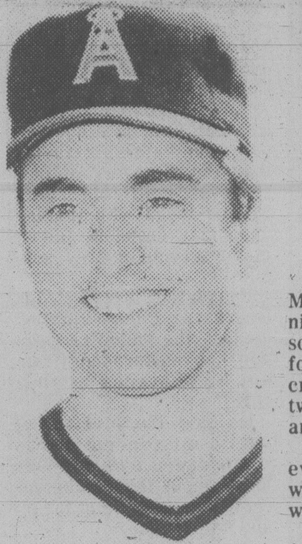
Don Shwery, the Indians' B.C. scout, said the American League club was extremely impressed by Bajus' raw potential and size and wanted to sign him immediately. Bajus is six-feet six inches and weighs 190 pounds.

"Oh yeah, I'm excited," Bajus said in an interview from his West Vancouver home. "It (the signing) came as kind of a surprise."

Cleveland now is sending Bajus to Batavia, N. Y. to pitch the rest of the season for the New York-Pennsylvania Rookie League.

"He's got a lot of raw material and there's good potential here," said Shwery, past president of the Vancouver and District Umpires Association.

Shwery said Bajus will report to Cleveland's spring training camp in Tempe, Ariz. and might also spend another two months in winter camp in Puerto Rico.



OPENING pitchers in tonight's all-star baseball game at Seattle are Nolan Ryan (above) for American League and Steve Carlton (below) for National League.

Florida connection working for Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Florida State connection will be in action at Empire Stadium for the first time this season when British Columbia Lions meet Montreal Alouettes in a Canadian Football League game tonight.

Wide receiver Leon Bright, who went home to Florida last week after his father was wounded in a shooting incident, and his former Florida State University clubmate, running back Larry Key, will team up in the interlocking game.

Key had some fluid on his left knee and was withheld from weekend scrimmage drills but head coach Vic Rapp said he expects his top running threat to play against the Als.

Bright, the CFL's 1977 Rookie of the Year, will bolster the Lions' running attack which chewed up Saskatchewan Roughriders in the fourth quarter of B.C.'s 28-4 opening game victory at Taylor Field last week.

Another Lion threat is Richard Murray a six-foot-two, 245-pound defensive end.

Murray is a recent graduate of the University of Oklahoma Sooners football program, a team that lost only five games in the four years he played.

He was selected by Detroit Lions in the 10th round of last year's National Football League draft, was eventually let go, then spent most of the 1978 season waiting for a call which finally came from Lions' defensive co-ordinator Vince Tobin.

Despite his impressive start, Murray knows his position is anything but secure. He's playing the spot vacated last season by Louie Richardson, placed on the injury list with a twisted ankle that is slowly healing.

The Alouettes are not going to be easy pickings this season even though they lost some of their prime American talent in NFL raids.

"Imports you can replace, Canadians you can't," says Bob Geary, Als general manager.

The Montreal team was a victim of NFL grabs on three of their best imports during the off-season, losing cornerback Vern Perry to Houston Oilers, linebacker Chuck Zapiec to Kansas City Chiefs and quarterback Sonny Wade to Philadelphia Eagles.

Joe Barnes, his sidekick Gerry Dattilio and rookie Ron Calcagni from Arkansas are the three Als quarterbacks.

But all is not smooth for Montreal because Barnes, at his best when he's running, has showed a marked lack of mobility, possibly from recurring knee problems.

His pass completions remain under 50 per cent and he has thrown at least one interception in each half of the four exhibition games and one regular season 11-9 win over Toronto Argonauts last week.

Bob Hosea, at cornerback, has proved to be an adequate replacement for Perry while Willie Hampton, taking over for Zapiec has improved each game.

Veteran tight end Peter Dalla Riva has a sore ankle and isn't expected to play, although he will dress for the game. He sprained the ankle in last week's win over Toronto.

Hudon returns to win circle

The harness-racing driver from Surrey is again handling the reins after being sidelined because of a leg broken in four places during a May 31 pile-up.

Joe had resumed driving Friday with his leg still in a cast, but failed to win that day or Saturday.

It was a different story Monday as Hudon chalked up victories in his two drives, with favorites Bold Design in the seventh race and Cut The Deck in the 10th.

Mitchs Butch, beaten twice when moved up after four successive wins, returned to its own class and took the featured ninth race, paying $5.40 to win and combining with Brave Bullet for a $40.20 Exactor.

Catcher's pitching rescues Lakehill

Bruce Ellemo turned from catching to pitching Monday night and led Lakehill to a 4-3 decision over Oak Bay in the opening game of the District Little League baseball championship tournament at Hampton Park.

Ellemo stepped from behind to plate to relieve starter Dan Thomas in the third inning and proceeded to strike out eight batters the rest of the way.

Lakehill capitalized on Oak Bay errors to score the winning run in the bottom of the sixth and final inning.

The tourney continues tonight with Triangle facing Hampton at 6:30 p.m.

Lakehill 200 011— 4 5 1

Gordon Head victory

Gordon Head, boosted by a four-run seventh inning, edged Layritz 10-9 Monday in the opening game of the Greater Victoria Babe Ruth (13-year-olds) baseball championship tournament at Bullen Park.

Darren Massey, Craig Peterson, Ron Amos and Richard Ruffano scored the runs during the seventh.

Jim Rutledge second to Cox

ABBOTSFORD — Vancouver veteran Bob Cox carded a five-under-par 66 Sunday to finish with a 133 total and a victory in the Abbotsford Open tournament at Ledgeview Golf Club.

Jim Rutledge of Victoria's Uplands was runner-up at 135 after shooting a 68.

John Morgan of Uplands finished in a tie for eighth place and Don Gowan of Glen Meadows was the low amateur with a 69-69 — 138.

By Bill Walker
Times Staff

It was hot and humid in Memorial Arena Monday night and maybe that had something to do with what followed in the Western Lacrosse Association game between Nanaimo Timberman and Victoria Shamrocks.

But, on second thought, even that's doubtful. The weather only made matters worse.

In simple fact the game followed the usual pattern between these clubs this year — chippy and vindictive.

This time it was often just plain stupid.

The clubs ran up a total of 150 minutes in penalties, 81 minutes to the Timbermen and the rest to the Rocks, with Ken King of the Timbermen almost but not quite made a travesty of the game in compiling 47 all by himself.

King took on everybody right from the start and finished with six minors a major and three misconducts including a match.

His final target, or adversary, whatever, was Dennis Somner and both got 25 minutes in what might have had serious consequences if the officials hadn't jumped in to stop it as quickly as they did.

Maybe the game officials could have kept the game under control earlier and maybe they couldn't. But they did try and they did call call almost everything that went on; and sure, they called a few cheap penalties as well. But not as many as the cheap shots that were being taken by the players.

And at the end the players were still slashing away. So who knows?

However, if that's the way the players want to play it, that's what the fans have to take. Perhaps the best part of the evening was that there weren't many there — perhaps 900 — to see how lacrosse shouldn't be played.

Otherwise, for the record, Shamrocks were the better club when the game was the thing; won handily, 11-5, and moved into a first-place tie with New Westminster Salmonbellies doing it.

And with the Salmonbellies due in town Wednesday, a natural is set up.

An Irish victory in that one can go a long way toward the league championship as they have three games in hand on the Bellies.

In addition, Monday, Kevin Alexander came through with four goals, the fourth game in which he has scored four goals since joining the Shamrocks from the T-Men. He had one assist.

Shamrock goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer turned in another of his stellar performances. Of the five Nanaimo goals, three came on power plays.

Meanwile, Nanaimo goalkeeper Mac Maude was also highly proficient in defeat.

Maude made 54 saves, 24 in the first period in a spectacular display and, of the 11 goals against him by the Rocks, five were on power plays. The clubs rarely were at full strength.

Defeat kept the Timbermen from moving into a tie with Vancouver Burrards for the fourth and last playoff spot.

Rocks led 4-2 after one and 10-3 after two.

Dan Green and Jim Lynch each scored two goals for the Irish while Andy Reid, Bill Marechek and Randy Bryant had singles.

UVic crews win four

CALGARY — University of Victoria rowing crews won four events and came second in the remaining three they entered at the Great Plains Regatta at the weekend.

UVic won the men's and women's four with cox, men's four without cox and women's eight with cox. Second-place finishes were recorded in the men's quad, men's pairs and women's four without cox.

Tough rivals in field against Victoria aces

Victoria drivers, who have home track advantage tonight and Thursday as the Speedweek Northwest open super-stock competition touches down at Western Speedway, served notice at the weekend they'll be contenders against some pretty stiff competition.

Joe Ruttman of Upland, Calif., hot from a victory over A.J. Foyt in the Milwaukee 100 USAC race, had a disagreement with Skagit owner Jim Raper over expense money.

Another visiting driver who has beaten Ruttman several times this season, Mike Miller of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., missed the first race of the $55,000 series because he doesn't like to run in the dirt.

Pirates top VI 90

Capital City Pirates humbled VI 90 Vicettes 3-2 in Victoria Senior Women's Softball League play Monday at Hyacinth Park.

Lanny Robertson pitched the Breaker victory while Nesta Horne and Kathy Cave sparked the attack with three hits each.

In Macdonald Men's League play, Garth Glover drove in the winning run in the eighth inning to help The Saints to a 6-5 decision over James Bay Inn and Mayfair Insuance defeated Esquimalt Rebels 6-4 at Macdonald Park.

Senators boost Mussel string

SALEM, Ore. — Jim Bryan slammed three hits, scored twice and batted in one run in extreme heat Monday to lead Salem Senators to an 11-5 Northwest League baseball victory over Victoria Mussels.

It was the eighth consecutive loss for the Mussels, and the fourth straight win for Salem.

Officials said the late afternoon game started with the thermometer at 38 degrees on the field, as a heat wave simmered over Oregon's Willamette Valley.

Mussels have today off and return to Victoria's Royal Athletic Park on Wednesday for a 7:30 p.m. game against Grays Harbor Mets.

Canadians will shoot

WEST BERLIN (CP) — A seven-member Canadian team started competition today in the world archery championships thanks to a last-minute Canadian government go-ahead.

Nine countries, including the Soviet Union, have withdrawn from the championship over the participation of South Africa.

Canadian team officials were uncertain whether competing here would affect Sport Canada funding of the national team following Sunday's vote by the International Archery Federation (FITA) to reject a Soviet proposal that South Africa and Rhodesia be excluded from the championships.

"We've just talked with Ottawa and Canada will shoot," said Canadian team manager Fred Usher of Victoria 20 minutes before Monday's 3:00 p.m. deadline set by FITA officials for countries to announce their entries.

In Sunday's vote the Soviet proposal was defeated by a count of 26 to 20 with three abstentions. Canadian officials would not say how they voted.

China has also withdrawn following another FITA vote to allow Taiwan to compete. This leaves 28 countries in the competition.

India overwhelmed

EDGBASTON, England (Reuter) — England beat India by an innings and 83 runs in the first cricket test here Monday.

After reaching 227 for four, India's second innings disintegrated and the visitors were all out for 253 with Ian Botham finishing with five wickets for 70 and Mike Hendrick with four for 45.

The overwhelming victory will make England an even firmer favorite to win the four-match series.

India was never in the match after England won the toss and batted first on an easy-paced pitch. England's first innings total of 633 for five declared was its heaviest in a home test for 41 years.

India followed-on after being bowled out on Saturday for 297 and its slim prospects of saving the match were enhanced Monday morning when Sunil Gavaskar and Chetan Chauhan scored a century opening stand.

But after Gavaskar was out for 68 and Chauhan for 56, Gundappa Viswanath with 51 was the only other batsman to trouble England.

It was the third successive innings defeat for India in test matches in England.

First ace helps Holly grab lead

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Holly Warne of Richmond scored her first-ever hole-in-one as she took a first-round lead Monday in the British Columbia women's amateur golf championship.

Warne, a three-handicapper who scored her ace on the 158-yard fifth hole, shot a par 73 to take a three-stroke lead over defending-champion Lynn Cooke of Vancouver.

Last year, she won the women's Simon Fraser open on the Prince George course.

"I think it's the clear air," she smiled. "We're camping and I had a good sleep last night."

Veteran Billie Bartley of Richmond and Susan McCleery of Kamloops each shot 79s.

Dawn Coe of Cowichan and Patty Grant of Prince George, the two lowest scoring juniors, were among five who shot 80s in the first round.

The top 16 golfers from Monday and today will advance to match play for the championship Wednesday through Friday. Scores from the first two rounds also are included among those used to determine the B.C. team for the Canadian championship in St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 22 through 25.

Fourteen golfers are trying for the team over six rounds, with four already played in Vancouver, Victoria and Sidney.

One of the more interesting Victoria District golf competitions reaches a climax at the Royal Colwood course Wednesday.

However, if they tie in the playoff, they will share the Willie Park Driver, won last year by Colwood.

Wednesday's pairings, with Gorge players named first:

Grant Milliken and Rob Ferguson vs Don Gowan and Phil Scott; Robin Steffanick and Dave Donaldson vs Marty Richards and Bill Penny; Stu Holroyd and Rick Casson vs Mike Foreman and Hal Jacobsen.

Schultz wins Century Run

Len Shultz, riding a Kawasaki, accumulated only nine penalty points to win the annual Century Run road rally staged Sunday by the Victoria Motorcycle Club.

The race covered 105 miles around the southern end of Vancouver Island.

Finishing in order behind Shultz were Frank LaFace (Yamaha, 11 points), Dave Farndon (Yamaha, 13), Roger Boothroyd (Yamaha, 14) and George Lohrmann (Suzuki, 16).

Another win for Ballendine

Cliff Ballendine, a member of the Victoria Athletic Association Boxing Club who was Golden Boy in British Columbia junior boxing this year, has made it three straight victories on a cross-Canada tour.

Fighting in the 112-pound division, Ballendine earned a decision at Moncton, N.B., Sunday over Murray Simard, a national junior champion last year.

Don't squawk at changes in Mork

Scott's World

By Vernon Scott

HOLLYWOOD — It is a sacred television maxim that you don't tamper with a hit series, but Mork and Mindy has undergone a major overhaul during its recent hiatus in which half the cast was lopped off.

Gone are Conrad Janis and Elizabeth Kerr who played Mindy's father and grandmother, respectively, in what apparently is a bid to attract a larger segment of youthful viewers.

The move is unusual in that Mork and Mindy was the most highly-rated new show of the 1978-79 season, seldom out of the top 10 and not infrequently in the No. 1 spot.

The series is produced by Gary Marshall whose Laverne and Shirley and Happy Days sitcoms have been raging successes.

In place of the elderly Janis and Kerr, the show is bringing in Jay Thomas and Gina Hecht to play the brother-sister proprietors of an Italian delicatessen. Also added is Jim Stahl in the person of Mindy's stuffed-shirt cousin.

Mork and Mindy, moreover, will begin its second season with a million-dollar hour-long fantasy episode including some spectacular special effects.

Robin Williams (Mork) and Pam Dawber, who plays Mindy, had questioned changing the show's focus. But after four new episodes Pam has concluded the series will be as good or better than it was in its premiere season.

"Robin and I wondered why they make such drastic changes," said Pam. "You don't tamper with success. I think they're looking for more story potential with younger people.

"We really miss Elizabeth and Conrad. They were great fun to work with. But I think the network wanted to involve Mindy with friends her own age.

"They also wanted to get rid of the music store set. It was static and hard to shoot."

The essentials of the series will remain the same. Mork from Ork will continue to attempt to adjust to living on earth with his benefactor Mindy. No one seems concerned that Mork and Mindy — both young, both single, both attractive — live together.

"I guess I'm the only unmarried girl on the tube living with a man," Pam said, "except for the two girls living with a bachelor on Three's Company.

"There's just a hint of romance between Mork and Mindy with affectionate exchanges at the end of some of the episodes. We have only a little sexual undercurrent going. But it's made pretty clear Mork sleeps upstairs."

Williams is clearly the star of the show. Viewers tune in to catch his imaginative flights of improvisation. But Pam, a lithe, fresh-faced native of Detroit has collected her own fans.

She doesn't mind playing the straight person. It's necessary for me to be aware of the rhythm of what he's doing. During story conferences I usually just sit and listen. The show is written by men with a male point of view. They do allow me some input. I speak up when they have Mindy saying or doing something that doesn't suit her character.

"When we began the show, they didn't have a concept for either character. They hired me and Robin before they had a script, so Mindy is still developing. The producers wrote Mindy's character around me.

"They let me choose all of Mindy's clothes which are a little more sweet than my own tastes.

"I want Mindy to be with it, a modern girl. I'm making a mistake if she's for Gidget.

"It was odd when I first saw the set of Mindy's apartment. It just happened to be in the style of my cabin in upstate New York. And they have Mindy driving a Jeep, which is what I drive at my cabin."

Pam recognizes the fact that Williams is the star of the show and is almost grateful that she doesn't share his superstar public identity.

"I'm unrecognizable away from the show," she said, "even in the weeks when it's number one. It's kind of nice to walk around in obscurity. It's partly my doing. I don't relate myself to the success of the show.

"My lifestyle hasn't changed all that much except for moving to California and being amazed that I can afford to buy a house out here. But I haven't bought expensive cars and I don't travel in Hollywood circles. I still have the same friends I had before the series."

Pam spent seven years in New York as a successful, well paid model and estimates she made 100 TV commercials before signing for Mork and Mindy.

Her actor boyfriend is moving from new York to be with her but Pam isn't thinking about marriage.

The kiss of death?

NEW YORK (AP) — The rock 'n' roll played by KISS may be music to the ears of teen-agers but it's noise to a lawyer who lives below one of the group's guitarists.

The Lawyer, Stephen Steinberg, in papers filed Monday in state Supreme Court, charged guitarist Stanley Eisen violated anti-noise provisions of his lease and failed to carpet the floor, which also is required by the lease.

Hear the music play at the tent cabaret

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

What one likes best among the summer entertainment offerings in Victoria will depend largely on individual preference; whether it's jazz in Beacon Hill Park, light live comedy at the McPherson, British Music Hall at the Empress, or the great artistry of the Victoria International Festival.

Or perhaps the cabaret and stage music of the 1930s and 40s in a tent by the water's edge.

Whatever, apart from the International Festival which is in a class by itself, there is something good to be said for all the offerings.

But speaking from the point of view of talent, vitality and professional expertise in a popular idiom, unsurpassed is Kaleidoscope's tent theatre at the Inner Harbor, where children are delightfully entertained in the afternoons and sophisticated audiences in the evenings.

Few who have seen him perform at various times would deny that Paul Liitich is this city's most brilliant and stylish professional actor; certainly as far as his special genre is concerned, this is undeniable.

There is no inch of his body that is not expressive from the hair on his scalp to finger and toe-tips. The mobility of his features and the fluent grace with which he moves are like visual poetry — at times lyrical, frequently comic and witty.

He is abetted with tremendous verve and vocal strength by Elizabeth Gorrie and Dorothy-Ann Haug, two proficient performers whose spirited and taut teamwork, whether a deux or a trois, never falters.

The material, researched and compiled by the Belfry's Don Shipley and presented under the title, Songs From the Cabarets, is haunting, sultry, sexy; especially so when it is concerned with the bistros of Berlin and Paris and when it touches on the art of such as Piaf and Dietrich.

Liittich introduces the theme with Wilkommen from the musical, Cabaret, luring the audience with a blend of inuendo and open invitation to sip at the fleshpots.

Among the highs in this show, which actually has no lows (unless one counts the backless bleacher seats) is a wonderful mime scene in which a phantasmagoria of wheels and pedals fails to respond to Liittich's spanner and bedraggled blueprint.

Attractive Gorrie and Haug respond beautifully to everything Liittich provides and do very well on their own in their echoes of legendary songbirds of the period. Vocally Gorrie is the superior member of the trio for her voice is musical and true as well as of excellent timbre.

Splendid pace and tempo, the definition and balance that the entire performance reveals, and its fine discipline must be credited to the direction by Glynis Leyshon, former Bastion Theatre PR gal who next season, will be associate director at Vancouver Playhouse Centre.

A strong protagonist is the ensemble that accompanies and is very much part of the character and action. Lorna Paterson at the piano leads with Eric Knight on saxophone and guitar and George Dixon on percussion. They're a great group that does much to establish an atmosphere that the tent, in this particular instance, tends to inhibit.

And speaking of the tent, difficulties with the fire marshall have been overcome. The waterfront setting is perfect for a summer evening, so, despite the absence of a cabaret atmosphere within the tent, Songs of the Cabaret is a must-see show. Only hurry. It may not be continuing beyond this week unless audiences grow.

Concerti score a world first

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

A world-wide "first" marked the official opening of the Victoria International Festival Monday.

The presentation of an all-concerto program with three or four soloists participating has not been made at any other festival anywhere, according to records.

Concerti Extravaganza is a concept of International Festival-Shawnigan Summer School of the Arts founder-director J.J. Johannesen.

Its premiere before a near-capacity audience, created a properly gala occasion for the start of the eighth annual festival. It also marked the first collaboration between the Victoria Symphony Society and the Festival.

The 34-piece orchestra (many of the players are professional core members of the Symphony), was comfortably accommodated on the McPherson Playhouse stage.

Guest conductor was William Shookhoff, here this summer to conduct the Festival's Opera Piccola productions in August. Violin, piano and clarinet concertos were performed by international soloists Daniel Heifetz, Robin McCabe and Gervase de Peyer.

Under the alert and definitive conducting of Shookhoff, the orchestra performed responsively, creating a mostly satisfying partnership with the soloists. Attack was crisp, dynamics almost always under control, orchestral color well and sensitively used. There was excellent rhythmic vitality and a sense of confidence throughout.

Heifetz performing the Bach A minor, revealed an intense and passionate temperament balanced by a keen lyrical sense in the Andante movement. The purity of his intonation, precise yet sensitive bowing and fine left hand articulation were outstanding in this richly baroque performance.

McCabe, a favorite with past festival audiences, once again charmed her listeners with the sensitivity and gleaming virtuosity of her keyboard style.Playing Mozart's No.21, C Major K.467, she produced lovely transparent tone and perfectly shaped phrases that expressed the elegance of the work. The middle movement was beautifully done with subtle touches of great charm while the cadenzas that deocrated the outer movements revealed her disciplined power and vitality.

Breathtaking is an overworked adjective but it's the appropriate one for the performance of clarinetist Gervase de Peyer. This formidable English artist whose mastery of the instrument has made him pre-eminent on world concert and festival stages, leaves one amazed and dazzled as though having witnessed an act of incredible magic.

Playing the challengingly-brilliant Weber clarinet concerto, de Peyer produced a superb tonal range, delicate whisperings of sound as well as intense and shining resonances. Notes cascaded in glittering streams but lyrical phrases were handled with exquisite restraint and a sense of poetry.

Tonight's concert at the McPherson will present violist Nobuko Imai performing Schubert's Sonata in A minor, as well as pianist Ruth Laredo and cellist Harvey Shapiro.

Second City bites dust

TORONTO (CP) — The Second City TV comedy series has been cancelled.

The satirical show was scheduled for a fourth weekly season on the Global television network this fall but sales in the syndicated markets across the United States weren't as good as expected, Second City owner Andrew Alexander said Monday.

"And its $50,000 to $60,000 cost per episode is way beyond our range to maintain it without U.S. sales," said Global network program director Bill Stewart.

Times News Services

The world's financial markets showed scant confidence in U.S. President Jimmy Carter's energy proposals today as the price of gold soared to a new high and the dollar tumbled further on Asian and European exchanges.

Gold leaped by $4.125 overnight in London and Zurich to open at $297 an ounce — an all-time high.

In London, where sterling is buoyed up by Britain's North Sea oil reserves, the pound strengthened considerably. Sterling opened at $2.2605 (U.S.) up nearly 2 cents from the overnight close of $2.2420.

The opening price in London was the dollar's lowest since June, 1975, though as trading got under way, the U.S. currency came back slightly and sterling was quoted at $2.2580.

In a related development, two private U.S. economists reported Monday that the oil-rich OPEC nations have so much money invested in U.S. banks that members of the alliance could disrupt the U.S. dollar's stability by simply withdrawing their funds.

And the potential impact could be even more severe if OPEC countries — fuelled by new funds from the latest round of oil price increases — funnel more cash into U.S. investments, the economists add.

The U.S. treasury department has declined to release breakdowns on U.S. investments by individual countries, contending such action could embarrass certain sensitive governments — primarily Saudi Arabia — and trigger the large-scale withdrawals economists worry about.

As a result, the extent of investments by individual OPEC countries is not publicly known and the impact a withdrawal could have is in dispute.

For example, estimates of U.S. investments by OPEC countries presented to a House of Representatives subcommittee Monday ranged from $52.1 billion to $90 billion, with the bulk coming from Saudi Arabia.

Probably the most pessimistic outlook came from Paul Erdman, an international economist and author of The Crash of '79, and from Douglas Lamont, dean of the Walter E. Heller College of Business Administration in Chicago.

"Lines at the gas pumps could someday be succeeded by lines outside the banks," said Erdman, who predicted large withdrawals of OPEC money not only would devalue the U.S. dollar but could set off runs on U.S. banks by U.S. investors.

Lamont said the Saudi Arabians "can destabilize the American dollar whenever they choose" and contended the Saudi government caused the 1978 drop in the U.S. dollar's value on international monetary markets by cutting back its investment in U.S. government securities.

Louis Walinsky, an economic consultant to Robert A. Nathan Associates, agreed that Saudi Arabia has acquired "a degree of influence and power over the U.S. never before achieved by any other nation in our history." But he said he didn't feel a rapid withdrawal of investments would be "a threat as of now," although they could become a future problem.

Sponsors want more cash

Carter's energy speech, economists Monday said that while his new measures may help slightly to hasten the economy's recovery from recession next year, they could add to inflation over the longer run.

Some experts question whether the nation can build 30 synthetic fuel plants over the next 10 years - as would be required to meet Carter's 2 million-barrel-a-day goal by 1990 - with the present construction force and equipment.

The president, however, appears certain to get most of the main features of his energy program through Congress because similar proposals are already in the works on Capitol Hill.

For example, the Senate Government Operations Committee headed by Abraham Ribicoff, today began hearings on establishing an entity similar to Carter's proposed Energy Security Corporation to direct development of domestically produced synthetic fuels, mostly from coal and oil shale.

Later this week, in another Senate committee, Sen. Henry Jackson will begin marking up his bill establishing an entity similar to what Carter proposed — an Energy Mobilization Board — to expedite constructimn of energy facilities.

Next week, Jackson's committee will try to write a single bill creating a synthetic fuel program and authorizing waivers of various govermnment regulations to expedite projects aimed at meeting the nation's energy needs. The sources of that omnibus bill would be the many pieces of legislation introduced by members of Congress plus the Carter proposals.

His hope, Jackson reports, is to get such a bill - similar to the heart of Carter's new energy program - voted by the Senate before the August recess begins.

Next week, the full House will vote on a proposal similar to the standby gasoline rationing authority Carter is requesting.

The House, which has passed a synthetic fuels bill by an overwhelming vote, is expected to act promptly on legislation sponsored by Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., to cutup regulatory red tape.

Medical training slammed people in from outside the province, he said.

"That's true, but we are limiting opportunities for our own young people."

The province's only medical school is at the University of B.C. and admits 80 students a year from a list of about 1,500 applicants.

The competition is incredible and academic standards unnaturally high — marks are often checked as far back as the beginning of high school.

As a result, only children from B.C.'s economic elite get into medicine because they can afford to go to England or Alberta for their training.

"And that's rotten," Petch stated.

He said while establishing professional medical schools in B.C. will cost a good deal, it will be worth it in the long run.

The side benefits are considerable — construction of buildings will provide new jobs, the standard of health care will go up, and more research will be done in the province.

B.C. loses out on federal grants for research because there is only one medical school in the province.

150 km/h chase nets pair

Two men are to appear in provincial court following a police chase which hit speeds of 150 km/h through parts of Saanich and View Royal Monday night.

A Saanich police spokesman said the men were arrested after the fleeing vehicle — reported stolen in Victoria earlier in the day — was finally forced off the road by a police car at Helmcken and Old Island Highway.

The spokesman said both vehicles were damaged.

He said the two suspects face an array of charges.

The 33-year-old driver is charged with criminal negligence, impaired driving, driving while his licence was under suspension, theft over $200 and possession of stolen property. His 37-year-old passenger was jointly charged with the latter two offences.

The chase began shortly before 9 p.m. when a Saanich patrol officer spotted the car on the Trans-Canada Highway near Tillicum.

The car was driven off at high speed starting police on a 13.8-kilometre chase along the highway and through the quiet suburban streets.

He owns at least one Miami-based business, Central American Beef and Seafood Trading Co.

Dr. Francisco Urcuyo Maliano, 55, president of the Chamber of Deputies, the lower house of Congress, was elected as interim head of state and was to turn the government over to the Sandinista-backed provisional junta.

Sergio Ramirez Mercado, leader of the five-member junta, said in Costa Rica that the new rulers planned a triumphial entry in Managua, accompanied by the foreign ministers of eight other Latin American countries.

The radio station of the Sandinista National Liberation Front, a broad-based coalition led by avowed Marxists, announced Somoza's departure early today.

"The genocidal dictatorship of Somoza has been overthrown and the people of Nicaragua are free," the clandestine broadcast said. "The national guard has been annihalated."

The Sandinistas, formed in 1963, have waged a sporadic guerrilla war against Somoza with help from Cuba, which trained many of their guerrillas, and the leftist regime in Panama.

Since January 1978 an estimated 15,000 persons — mostly civilians — have been kiilled in fighting between Somoza'a national guard and the Sandinistas. Tens of Thousands of others have been left homeless.

The capital of Managua, the only city not controlled by the Sandinistas when Somoza resigned, was quiet today, and when the curfew was lifted at dawn, national guardsmen who have been patrolling the streets disappeared.

According to Washington sources, the United States government expects the fall of the Somoza goverment to be followed by a long power struggle within Sandinista ranks between Cuban-trained Marxists and moderates, with a fair chance the moderates will prevail.

Sources said the United States, as mediator in the talks that led to Somoza's departure, has received commitments from the provisional government to avoid "another Iran."

The United States fears that if the communists gain a strong foothold in Managua it might present a domino-effect threat to other governments in Central America.

Living high amid fickle elements

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Gale-force winds, fog, snow, rain and freezing temperatures have been experienced by two botanists making a summer survey of plant communities high above the timberline of Vancouver Island's snow-capped mountains.

But Dr. Robert Ogilvie, curator of the botany division of the Provincial Museum, and visiting plant ecologist Dr. Claude Beguin of the University of Neuchatel's botany institute in Switzerland, don't seem to mind the periodic discomforts.

Experienced alpinists, they have just returned from a survey of alpine areas of Strathcona Park where it rained for an entire week and snowed once.

Soon they will be off again to continue their work in other mountainous regions of the island, recording and studying the relations of plants to their harsh alpine environment.

Most of the summer and early fall will be spent above the timberline.

"It can be very beautiful up there," Beguin said. "But sometimes it can be very nasty. Fog can suddenly set in and snowstorms are not unusual in summer."

Both are aware of hazards of alpine country. Beguin lost two friends in the Alps in an avalanche and Ogilvie ran into some tricky situations exploring the Canadian Rockies before coming to Victoria.

"Anyone planning to hike in alpine regions should carry proper equipment and clothing — down jackets and wind jackets, mittens, raingear, proper hiking boots and extra rations," Ogilvie said.

"Weather in alpine regions in summer can change from day to day and it can close in on you. You have to be prepared and be cautious."

For shelter the scientists take with them a low-slung tent because it can resist strong winds.

Both say alpine hiking, climbing, and skiing has its joys but they're not too anxious to see these forms of recreation expand in B.C. because of the sensitivity of the environment at high altitudes.

"In Europe it's a real problem," said Beguin. "Many thousands of people use the alpine areas for various forms of recreation, hiking, climbing and skiing. And certain areas are used for growing hay or for cattle grazing. There is a real conflict of interest between man and the alpine ecological systems."

The result has been soil erosion, pollution and a danger of some plants becoming extinct, Beguin said.

This conflict of interest is one of the reasons he is here.

His studies will be compared with those carried out in the Swiss Alps and eventually it is hoped to reduce the conflict of interest between man and alpine plant communities.

Ogilvie, who is also participating in the research project, is Canada's leading authority on alpine flora.

"So far you have been lucky here because you haven't got some of our problems," said Beguin.

"But I've noticed some alpine areas used for skiing are getting pretty messy, and signs of heavy soil erosion are quite evident."

Alpine plants, he noted, mirror the surrounding environment.

They indicate what type of soil prevails in the area as well as its climate, animals and minerals.

TOWN TALK

Maybe it's about time somebody asked the Washington State park authority just what's going on in Birch Bay.

A growing number of Canadian visitors, including Bill Cameron, are wondering if the authority is aware some of its staff are apparently shilling for a private camp and trailer park operator in the community.

Visitors last weekend who turned up at the state park were told it was full but were handed cards entitling them to a "free" night's camping in the privately-owned ACI site.

But when Cameron and companions arrived at the site, they were told by the operator that they weren't really entitled to a free night but something might be arranged if they were interested in signing up — the figure of around $5,000 was mentioned as well as annual dues — for a year round spot in the park.

The Canadians told the operator what they could do with his come-on, tore up their "free" cards and left.

It's not often that Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Mel Cooper opposes economic development but there is one industry he would never welcome.

Legalizing gambling in this province, as suggested by MLA Don Lockstead (NDP — Mackenzie), would mean nothing but trouble, Cooper says.

Tourism Minister Don Phillips also opposes the idea.

The plans of Victoria tourist operators to advertise south of the border that B.C. has abundant supplies of gasoline to lure American tourists may run into trouble.

Ontario's department of tourism planned a publicity blitz in the eastern U.S. to get the same message across, but the ad campaign was cancelled after federal government officials complained that this was inconsistent with Canada's policy of energy conservation.

Not to say boastful and smug, thinks Town Talk. For every American visitor it brings into Canada, how many would be turned off?

There seems to be nothing more durable than coupon book schemes.

And while there is nothing illegal about them either, they invariably raise the eyebrows of Bill Tindall, manager of the Victoria Better Business Bureau.

This week Tindall says he's being flooded with calls about the latest in a long list of schemes to hit the Victoria area — a coupon booklet sponsored by the B.C. Lacrosse Association and marketed by Direct Marketing of Calgary.

The booklet costs $29.95 and each coupon entitles purchasers to get two of whatever for the price of one.

The sales pitch makes it all sound like the money is going to a worthy cause — the promotion of sport and phsyical fitness — but in actual fact the promoters walk away with about 45 per cent of the proceeds. Tindall says the lacrosse association gets only $8 and a like amount is given to a national group called CAPHER or the Canadian Association for Phsyical Health Education and Recreation.

He suggests purchasers familiarize themselves with the facts before being tempted into buying. Caveat "temptor."

Saanich going ahead with park

Royal Oak industrial park will proceed despite opposition from Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis, Saanich council decided Monday.

Council will ignore — at least for the time being — Curtis' public demand that Saanich drop the Royal Oak proposal.

Aldermen said they were confused over Curtis' sudden opposition and uncertain about his intention to enforce government pressure.

But they decided to invoke the support of property owners and continue planning the industrial park.

Ald. David Paterson advised council not to respond to Curtis' statement.

"It's up to property owners who wish this thing to go ahead to carry the ball and support the compromise proposal."

He said if council lets the people decide, the natural course of events should evolve.

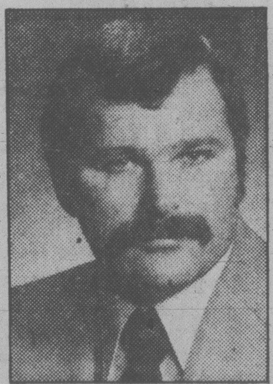
Paterson charged that Curtis is ill-informed and only heard one side of the issue before making up his mind.

In a letter to council, Curtis said it was his duty as MLA to speak out against the proposal even though his action might be interpreted as interference in local government.

Curtis said he had several meetings with residents and has received a large number of concerned letters.

The original industrial park plan introduced while he was mayor of Saanich was much smaller and would have had less impact on the neighborhood, Curtis said in the letter.

"Finally, I must tell you I am very impressed by the industrial area which has been developed in Central Saanich and which has significant space available for future expansion."



PATERSON
. . . Curtis 'ill-informed'

Ald. Fred Severson said he was shocked at the comparison of Keating Crossroad to Royal Oak and that it was obvious Curtis hasn't done his homework.

"He's badly misinformed if he thinks we are putting in the same kind of development," Severson said.

Curtis should have voiced his opposition prior to the election — it would have saved council a lot of work, time and embarrassment, he said.

Ald. Sandy Noel said he resented Curtis' statements to the media before he contacted council.

Noel recommended Saanich carry on with its plans until it hears something definite from the ministry.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said he wasn't going to get involved in the debate because he needs the minister's cooperation on several proposals.

An application for a proposed Saanich Cultural Centre and Horticultural Pavilion is sitting on Curtis' desk, Couvelier said.

"I'm not anxious to get into a public debate with the minister," said Couvelier, who added he didn't want to create the implication of blackmail.

Council decided to file Curtis' letter.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me if 'J'Accuse' is the title of a French book? W.D.Y.

A. No. It's the title of a famous open letter written by French writer Emile Zola to the president of the French republic. He accused the government of concealing the facts in the Dreyfus Affair. The latter was a notorious French miscarriage of justice in which anti-Semitism was a prominent factor.

Tourist robbed of $500

City police said Mary Alice Sagin of Keewatin was walking along Douglas near Spruce with her husband, Witold, when a youth ran up from behind, grabbed her purse and took off in a car.

Mrs. Sagin, who was not injured in the 11:10 p.m. incident, described the thief as about 20 and of average build.

Her brown leather purse contained the cash, ID cards, car keys and room key to their Wharf Street hotel.

Police reiterated a warning to women not to carry large amounts of cash in their purses when walking on the streets late in the afternoon or night.

Bunn attacks RJH chairman for by-passing his directors

Royal Jubilee Hospital board director Peter Bunn said today chairman Terry Prentice's announcement Monday of the closure of 14 beds was made without informing or consulting the board.

Bunn said he is "surprised and dismayed" by Prentice's action.

More elective surgery will have to be postponed and the impact in human terms will be enormous, Bunn said.

"Maybe it was necessary to close the beds and maybe not," he said.

"What I can't understand is why a decision this important was made by the chairman without consulting the full board."

Bunn, who has served notice of motion to make RJH board meetings public for the first time, said the closure announcement is one of a number of decisions made by Prentice without full debate.

"He is turning the board into a rubber stamp. I am not and never will be a rubber stamp."

Bunn said Prentice should have considered calling an emergency meeting of the board if he felt quick action was needed. First chance for the board to question Prentice on the decision will be the next meeting July 26.

Bunn said he expects his motion to make hospital board meetings open to the press and public will also be voted on at that meeting.

Bunn said Prentice should resign if he continues to favor secret meetings.

Prentice said the nursing shortage has forced Jubilee to close temporarily another 14 acute care beds, bringing to 30 the number of beds taken out of service since June 15.

He said the closure is not due to cost containment or budget restrictions and it is expected to last until after the Labor Day weekend.

The hospital also had to close 18 beds in the Eric Martin Institute because of a shortage of experienced psychiatric care nurses.

As of Sunday 27 per cent of 463 acute care beds were occupied by long-term care patients.

In addition, the hospital has 25 patients who require intensive care nursing and only 11 intensive care beds. The other 14 patients are being cared for in other parts of the building not equipped as intensive care nursing units.

To provide proper care, registered nurses have been diverted to work in these areas, leaving other areas with reduced staff levels. Staffing the temporary intensive care units on a 24-hour basis requires 12 registered nurses.

The 14-bed closure Monday has released registered nurses for work in other areas.

By the beginning of August there will be a total of 43 vacancies for registered nurses in the main hospital and 11 at the EMI.

A recent recruiting drive for nurses produced eight applications, of which two are immediately available.

The drive is continuing and the hospital is processing 15 applications from nurses available in late August. More applications are anticipated.

But Jubilee has been unable to find nurses with recent high-level experience prepared to work full-time.

Prentice said adequate levels of care will be provided to all patients, but elective surgery is subject to postponement, Prentice said.

Gray Line inquiry requested

Drivers back at wheel, continue work to rule

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber said today he will ask the Motor Carrier Commission to conduct a formal inquiry into complaints which sparked a walkout by Gray Line bus drivers Monday.

The drivers are back on the job today but are continuing to work to rule.

The drivers walked out to protest Gray Line's failure to honor the old contract under which the drivers worked before Gray Line was sold to a Seattle company last year.

The drivers, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Workers, won successor rights under a Labor Relations Board ruling.

They say Gray Line is paying drivers $2 an hour less than they got under the old agreement. Negotiations on a new agreement start Thursday.

The drivers have been working to rule for a week and a half, refusing overtime and work on days off.

CBRT committee chairman, Lorne deGirolamo, said the company only set a negotiating date when they started their work to rule.

The drivers also complain that they are continually forced to apologize to tourists for substandard service because the buses are run down, there aren't enough seats and they are often not properly cleaned.

DeGirolamo said Gray Line Seattle undertook before it purchased the line to buy new buses but the firm has not followed through.

Local Gray Line manager William Bridges said today the drivers' complaints are exaggerated but would make no further comment because of Thursday's negotiations.

Barber said the walkout came as no surprise to him.

"Absentee ownership is always second best."

Dear Abby

by Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband's mother had been a widow for a long time. About two years ago she married a nice-looking, quiet man none of us knew. They live only a few miles from us but we never visit them, and neither do any of her other four children who live in this area. The reason is one you will probably not believe: Mom's husband smells like he hasn't had a bath in 50 years! I an not kidding. Their house is an absolute pigsty; every piece of furniture in the place smells to high heaven. Nobody cares to eat or drink in their house because the smell spoils their appetite.

Mom was in the hospital for three weeks recently, and every day we'd take her husband to the hospital with us (it's a 25-mile drive). He smelled so bad we had to keep all the car windows open.

My husband even told him flat out that people were complaining, and to please clean himself up, but he got mad and refused to do anything about it.

The merchants in town complain about him, but they can't keep him out. They spray after he leaves. Abby, what can we do?

HOLDING OUR NOSES

DEAR HOLDING: The man must be mentally ill. And his wife has either lost her sense of smell or she's as sick as he is. This is a case for a doctor. For goodness' sake, don't just hold your noses; hold a family conference and get some medical advice!

DEAR ABBY: Ten years ago, before I met the man I married (I'll call him Bob), he got a girl pregnant. Bob was in the service in San Diego at the time.

The girl went to a home for unwed mothers in Seattle, had the baby (a girl) and gave it up for adoption. She named Bob as the baby's father.

My questions: When this child grows up, do we have any responsibility for her? Can she locate us if she wants to? Does she have any claim on my husband's estate if he dies before I do?

We have children of our own. Our wills read: "To all our surviving children . . ." Is this illegitimate daughter considered a surviving child of my husband's?

Bob told me that he has no real proof that this is really his child. He said he didn't love the girl, but he did sleep with her one weekend exactly nine monthe before the baby was born, so he could be the father.

Where do we stand?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: You could be standing right behind the eight ball — or in a safety zone, depending on what state you live in. (The laws differ.) Your questions are intelligent. Consult a lawyer. It could be the best investment you ever made.

Carbide - Saga of a Canadian Inventor, is a 24-page pamphlet that deals with the life of Thomas Wilson. In many respects, Thomas Wilson is Canada's answer to Thomas Edison — the famous American innovator.

Wilson's career as an invetor began at age 21 when he patented electric arc lighting. Over the course of the next thirty years, he developed more than 60 other inventions, ranging from navigational buoys to superphosphate fertilizer. In 1892, with the aid of several assistants, Wilson discovered the gas known as acetylene. The quality of acetylene's light was what attracted its first users. Eventually, acetylene's potential for welding and cutting was recognized; this helped pave the way for the automobile industry.

Aside from the biographical information on Thomas Wilson, the pamphlet contains a number of vintage photographs pertaining to Wilson's inventions, laboratories, and factories. All in all, it's an excellent portrait of a man whose many accomplishments have formerly gone unrecognized.

Desperate anger is a 'time-bomb'

YOUTH CLINIC

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Graham Cotter, clergyman; Dr. Saul Levine, psychiatrist, and Bruce Vichert, social worker.

DEAR DR. LEVINE: I'm so completely depressed that I can barely understand my own thoughts and feelings. I don't want to die but I desperately feel like overdosing, just to be away from my own mind and thoughts.

I have a lot of friends, yet I know none of them are what you call true friends. I have a lot of pills that I'm just waiting to take. I want to die, but only for awhile. Then maybe I'll see who really cares. The rest will just show up, smiling sympathetically because it will make them feel like such humble, understanding friends.

I want to cry forever and lock myself in bed. Please help me soon. Time is running out but I try to make it last a little longer. I know I've only barely touched the surface of what's tearing me apart, but maybe you can help. I hope you answer before I take the pills because I would like help.

ANSWER: I'd be less than honest if I didn't tell you that I find your letter somewhat annoying. It's not that I don't believe that you're unhappy, lonely and desperate. It is the way you are choosing to express it.

You obviously harbor a great deal of anger at other people. You haven't talked about your family, but you mention your friends a few times in your letter. You want to teach them a lesson, as if that will solve your problems. Your letter sounds like a time bomb — "you have these pills", "time is running out".

You don't trust the caring or sincerity of your friends, and you claim you have no "true" friends. I don't know whether this is valid, or your perspective of it because you are feeling so down. But you are correct in assuming that your suicide will cause a lot of pain to many people, your family, as well as your friends.

You say that you don't want to die, or if you do then it should be "just for a while". Well, there is no coming back. And I wouldn't encourage you to play with the pills just to give everyone a scare — it never pays off.

But you do sound like you are in dire need of help. Please speak to somebody as soon as possible. A friend. A relative. A counsellor. Share your concerns and pain with someone who can listen, sympathize, suggest alternatives, and even get you professional help if you need it. But first throw away those pills.

DEAR DR. POWELL: I feel really embarrassed about writing this, but I can't turn to anyone else. I picked you, because you are a woman and should understand.

My best friend and I are both 17 and are both dating the same guy. We have no bad feelings against each other but we now have the same problem. We are both pregnant and are pretty sure it's the same guy. We are positive about the pregnancy, because we even went to the doctor together. We both would like to keep our babies. How do we approach the boy with this?

ANSWER: It sounds as if you are in a difficult situation. Polygamy is not socially accepted in our society and if you were aware of your best friend's involvement with your boyfriend, you were pretty careless to allow this pregnancy to occur.

I would suggest that all three of you have been irresponsible. Did none of you stop to ask yourself how your children will view your behavior and the questions they may ask you?

But let us look ahead and start making plans for you and your baby. I am assuming that marriage is out of the question at the present time. There are two directions which you must take. The first is to prepare for the rest of your pregnancy and your delivery. You should see the doctor on a regular basis and make plans to attend a prenatal class. There are important considerations about your diet, the amount of exercise you need and the physical preparation for the birth of your baby.

Your own doctor will have information on prenatal classes or a public health nurse can refer you. She is available through the public health department in your community.

Even more important is the psychological preparation for becoming a parent. You will have a particularly heavy responsibility being the only parent. This condition may change in time but the main responsibility for a while at least will be yours alone. You may need counselling.

I assume you are still in school. It is important to complete your school work. One possibility is to spend the next few months in a home for unmarried mothers. You can continue your studies and you will be in an environment where you can learn some of the things you will need to know about caring for your baby.

DEAR DR. COTTER: My parents make me go to church every week but once I get there all I do is daydream. I don't hear a word the priest is saying. Is there any significance in my going to mass?

ANSWER: If you don't listen to what is happening, and your belief is not active then it is useless folly. Perhaps you could go to a children's or young people's mass where everyone takes part, standing around the altar, singing together, and reading parts of the service.

See if there is such a mass at your church, and if there isn't, see if there is one in a nearby parish. I think your parents would rather you went to that kind of mass than have a rebellion on their hands with you never going to mass again once you get away from them.

Super cleanliness counters neck boils

YOUR HEALTH

by L. L. Coleman, MD

My neck breaks out with boils and abscesses every few months. They lay me up for days. Is there any way to prevent them? I'm 64. Could it be I have a vitamin deficiency? — Mr. B.F.

DEAR MR. F: Vitamin deficiencies and fatigue may be predisposing reasons why these boils, abscesses, furuncles and carbuncles persit. Fatigue can be remedied and vitamin supplements can be added to your diet.

Yet you should look elsewhere for the reasons why these infections occur. Many people irritate their necks with rough, coarse shirts, especially during hot and humid weather. Starch in the collars and irritating and abrasive detergents may break the skin and allow a germ (usually a staphylococcus) to set up housekeeping.

Some patients with a general systemic disease such as diabetes, seem to be more prone to the development of these infections. If such a condition does exist, it should be treated vigorously, of course.

The key to the prevention of these infections of the neck lies in scrupulous cleanliness of the skin. Keeping shirt collars soft and avoiding harsh laundry abrasives are important. If, at work, you have occasion to wipe your neck often, use a clean tissue rather than the same handkerchief that you may have used to blow your nose. Talcum powder can reduce the irritation of a collar. That's something else to keep in mind.

We have a 2-year-old boy who keeps us up all night with his sleeplessness. We are at the end of our rope trying to find a solution. To make matters worse, we have a new 2-month-old baby who needs our nighttime care. What can we do about this situation?— Mrs. R.S.

DEAR MRS. S.: It may very well be that the presence of the newborn infant represents some kind of threat to your 2-year-old son. He is not too young for you to take advantage of the modern psychological tests and evaluation that may reveal the basis for his problem. Rather than let it ride, I suggest that your doctor or pediatrician, and a psychiatrist or psychologist combine their talents to help you solve this distressing problem.

It is remarkable how often a simple solution can be found, one that may have been evading you.

'I like wild animals . . .and they like me

You will find Mary Wainwright on the third floor in the provincial museum's cultural tower, sorting and cataloguing a collection of British Columbia and Alberta birds eggs.

When that is completed she could be repairing the wings of an eagle or piecing together animal vertibrate.

In fact, working with anything that might be used in future museum displays and that, right now, is in need of repair.

That doesn't mean Miss Wainwright is settled into a life's work.

She would much rather it was with wild animals (live ones) and in some form of service that would give her an opportunity to to contribute to their welfare and preservation.

When her present contract at the museum is concluded (in approximately nine months time) she will be looking for that kind of work, probably in one of Canada's zoos or in an animal park.

"I like wild animals and they like me," she says with quiet assurance.

That knowledge was gained recently when this dedicated young woman spent almost four months as a student in the Wildlife Preservation Trust Zoo on the Island of Jersey, largest of the English Channel group.

Zoologist and author Gerald Durrell opened that zoo back in 1959 with the idea of providing a home for many species threatened with extinction.

The trust manages it now and though it the student program was activated, two or three years ago.

"I was very fortunate to be accepted," Mary Wainwright say. "The number of students is limited and most of them are chosen from the United States."

How did she hear of the program?

She's a Gerald Durrell fan and it was in reading his books that she learned of the Jersey Island zoo.

Intrigued with its aims and objectives she became a member of the Wildlife Preservation Trust. This, in turn, led to information about the student program.

Others in Victoria who belonged to the trust urged her to apply. She did, and as I have already told you, she was accepted.

The course included training in management, animal care and animal breeding.

In the three or four months she worked in every section of the zoo; with birds, outside mammals (lions, bears and the like), apes (chimps and gorillas) small mammals (lemurs and hurtias) marmosets, tamarinds and reptiles.

"I had no pre-conceived ideas about any of them," she says, "and I discovered I liked them all."

If she did have a favorite it would be the tapirs, she added.

"They are not particularly nice in themselves nor to look at, but if you touched them, they seemed to really respond.

"If I tickled them under their arms I got a decided reaction."

As far as reptiles are concerned she handled only the young and the small ones.

"Biggest was a 10-footer, a species of python, but I didn't touch it."

Strict control was maintained with all the different species, especially if the students were going into the cages.

"We tried to disturb them no more than needed."

She was born in St. Catharines, Ontario, went to school in Ottawa when her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wainwright, moved there and after they came to this city to make their home, attended University of Victoria.

In 1976 she took her bachelor of science degree there in biology and geography.

"My friends in the graduation class immediately began looking for work, but I wasn't ready for that," she recalls.

"So I set off on my own to see New Zealand, Australia, Samoa and the Fijis . . . to try and find out what people did in those places and in hope of deciding what I wanted to do."

In the next 20 months she worked off and on to keep going and among her many adventures, did bird watching in Australia and tried scuba diving on the Great Barrier Reef.

"I had never done scuba diving and I was entranced by the sheer magic of those beautiful under-sea gardens, the floral effects and the exotic shapes and brilliant colors of the corals and the fish.

"I went down twenty or more times before I left."

She came back to Victoria in the summer of 1978 and immediately did several months volunteer work in the zoology branch of the provincial museum.

This was followed by another few months filling in a as a children's nanny, before she was accepted for the Jersey Island student program.

Today, Mary Wainwright knows exactly what she wants as a life work. Its an opportunity to work with wild amimals (live ones) and in some small way, as she puts it, to assist in their welfare and their preservation.

And even as she sorts and catalogues the birds egg collection she is working on at present, you can be sure she is thinking of ways and means to make that dream come true.

Los Angeles Times

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. — Abnormally high incidences of ulcers and heart disease have been traced to people who write with their right hands but by nature are left-handed.

Dean Trembly, 70, a retired California Polytechnic State University professor who spent his life researching left-handedness, said he came to the conclusion after a series of recent tests.

"But, in fact, only about half the left-sided people are left-handed. The other half should be left-handed but use their right hand. This is known as the phenomenon of crossed dominance.

He was the first person to link illness to the phenomenon of crossed dominance when he conducted a survey of 98 paralyzed post-polio students at the University of Illinois in 1968.

The study served as his doctorate thesis. "Cross dominance appears to be a contributing factor because resulting nervous tension produces a weaker body, a body more susceptible to the virus of polio," Trembly wrote.

Recently he decided to look into other diseases to see if he could find some degree of relationship between disease and crossed dominance.

"No research is being done in this field. Yet there is need for a comprehensive survey of eye dominance and its implications," Trembly insists.

He said that studies in recent years have demonstrated that people who are right-handed but really should be left-handed "have far greater incidence of nervous tension than others.

Trembly believes every child should be tested for eye dominance when he begins school to make certain the left-handed child does not go against nature by writing right-handed.

Trembly does his testing with two 9-by-12-inch cards. One has two diagonal lines that cross, the other has a hole in the center smaller than a dime.

The person tested keeps both eyes open while he holds the card with the hole with both hands with arms extended and lowered. He looks at the crossed lines across the room and raises the card at arm's length until the crossed lines are visible through the hole.

The crossed line card is moved about several times and spotted through the hole by the viewer. Finally the viewer brings the card slowly to his face. The eye looking through the hole is the dominant eye.

Trembly is convinced a crossed-dominant person has a better chance for a healthier, more content life if he or she switches to his or her left hand.

Polka dots are on the spot

NEW YORK (UPI) — Polka dots are on the spot this season, on hats, shirts, skirts, belts, jewelry, handbags, even stationery and bedsheets.

Not since the heyday of the Katzenjammer kids in the 1930s have dots been so prevalent on the fashion scene.

Polka dots' name dates from the early 1800s, say researchers for a leading fashion jewelry manufacturer, when the dance called polka caught on throughout Europe and America.

Hoping to cash in on name recognition, clothiers often named new fashions after popular dances, said Trifari researchers.

COME TO OUR Waterfront Condos AT 630 SEAFORTH AVE.

We have prepared for you to enjoy the CRUNCH: LIKE THE ENERGY CRUNCH: a and b:

a. WE SUPPLY HEAT, AND HOT WATER (and as members of the G.V.A.O. assoc. — oil is cheaper)
b. "SEAFORTH WOODS" "CONDOS" ARE APPROX. 1 MILE FROM VICTORIA CITY HALL, so if GAS GETS too EXPENSIVE — you can USE THE VERY FREQUENT BUS SERVICE.

ALSO THERE IS THE HOUSING CRUNCH — WHERE INFLATION AND STRIKES COULD EASILY DOUBLE THE PRICE OF HOUSING.
AND THERE IS THE TAX CRUNCH:
For more on that, and for future retirement, see our ad under Condominium Classification No. 258.

The Lord is my Shepherd

I shall not want

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures

He restoreth my soul

He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake

Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death

I will fear no evil

For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies

Thou anointest my head with oil

My cup runneth over

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Tear out the roof if you like avocados

GARDENING

Jack Beastall

Avocado seeds are easy to sprout, grow quickly into a plant, and need little care, therefore most attempts are successful. But the successful owners of an avocado plant have several questions they would like answered.

What fertilizer to use? How to make a bushy plant? How to stop it growing so tall? When will it flower? How big will the fruits be? When can it be put out into the garden?

Questions like this show that these would-be avocado growers are not aware they have a lion by the tail, or more correctly, they are hoping to grow and fruit a semi-tropical orchard tree in the confines of a six-inch pot.

First a few words about the avocado. In the modern plant encyclopedia you will find it listed under Persea Americana. In older editions it is under P. gratissima or P. persea. It is related to the Bull Bay, Persia borbonia.

All these persias are trees from warm tropical or semi-tropical regions, the avacado being grown in southern California, central Florida, the West Indies, and Guatemala.

This answers the questions about planting out in local gardens. The avocado cannot be grown outdoors here because the first fall frost would kill the plant.

As to limiting the height, the avocado grows as an orchard tree to 60 feet. In common with our apples and pears, both of which can be sprouted from seeds, it makes a trunk to five or six feet before branching. Since the average home or apartment has no space for an apple tree neither has it space for an avocado.

No amount of pinching or pruning will convert the avacado into a busy little pot plant. It will make a straight stem to about 6 ft. and then the ceiling must be raised or the plant discarded.

Fertilizer would increase the problem of rapid growth. The sprouted seed is planted in a pot of poor soil tightly packed around the roots to retard growth. Growth will be around twelve to eighteen inches a year, therefore the plant is usually discarded after the second or third year. In a rich soil with fertilizer added it will grow three feet a year.

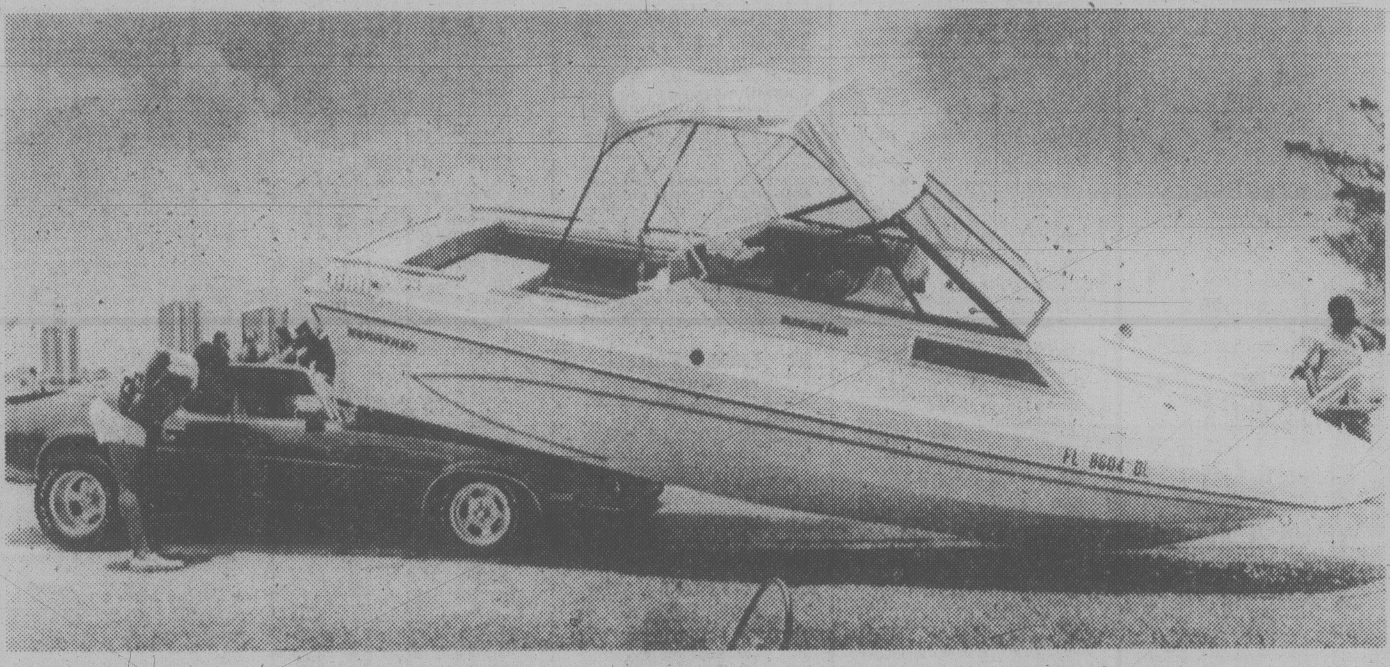
In warm regions orchard trees usually flower in the fifth or sixth year from planting as two-year-olds, that is, seven to eight years of age, and produce sufficiently for commercial use in the tenth year from planting. Flowering and fruiting is impossible under normal house conditions.

The main reason for sprouting avocado seeds is to acquaint children in grades one and two with the way plants are grown from seeds. For this purpose we have sprouted many avacado seeds in the past which have been donated to school classes.

The seeds are large and easily seen by the class without resorting to magnifying lenses; growth is rapid enough to maintain interest; care amounts to nothing more than sufficient water to keep the plant alive; and when the project is completed the plant is discarded and no expense has been involved.

To grow any plant from seed is both interesting and educational, not only for children but also for adult gardeners. We all learn something when we grow a plant, whether it be from the seed of an avocado, a date, a fig, an orange or a lemon, or the tuber of a sweet potato.

Other than this, the avacado is not a pot plant, a house plant, nor a gift plant; it is just a plant of passing interest, good for a couple of years.



RUNAWAY BOAT just couldn't wait for water but took off from its trailer behind towing car when the driver slammed on brakes. The vessel shot over the car's hood, stopping when it hit the pavement. Driver Darwin Del Castillo was surprised but unhurt.

Trees could cut project

A condominium-restaurant project in James Bay may be cancelled by city hall because the developer cut down trees on the building site.

Council's land use committee today decided that developer Foster Isherwood should be called to explain why his building permit shouldn't be withdrawn.

Until the committee gets a good explanation, no construction will be allowed to take place at 104 Dallas Road where Isherwood is working on a several-storey building that would house condominiums above a ground floor restaurant.

The project received approval earlier this year only after assurances by the developer that trees on the site would not be damaged or removed.

City solicitor Jacob deVilliers reported that by cutting the trees Isherwood has breached the land use contract.

"This land use contract (for 104 Dallas) contains very explicit prohibitions against the pruning, mutilation, or cutting down of trees, even when such action is necessary to comply with the provisions of the National Building Code. In breach of this covenant the owner has cut down one large tree and some smaller trees, so council may wish to treat this fundamental breach of the land use contract as a repudiation by the owner of the contract," said deVilliers.

City cruising for a slump

Victoria is down to 23 cruise ship visits per year while it should have 50 or more, Visitors Information Centre president Ed Higgin said today.

Victoria had 31 two years ago.

The problem, he said, is that Vancouver has become the recognized starting point for Alaska cruises, mainly because of superior airport facilities. Cruise ships specialize in fly-sail package tours.

No large international flights can land in Victoria due to limited customs space.

Vancouver now has 150 cruises a year and Higgins said many of these could be transferred to Victoria, producing a signficant boost in tourist revenues, if the airport situation could be resolved.

"There is no doubt the customs issue is the major problem."

At present no more than 108 air passengers can land at Victoria airport from the U.S. or other foreign country — meaning no charter 737s or stretch DC-8s can be accommodated.

The popularity of fly-sail tours has made airport facilities a crucial factor.

Expanding the customs facilities is not a new issue in Victoria. The Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce earlier asked the former government to enlarge customs facilities so the airport could be restored to full international status.

Higgin said he is hopeful the new federal government will be more receptive to Victoria's needs at the airport.

The cruise ships dock at Ogden Point. There is some competition for space with freighters but this would not be a serious problem until the number of liner visits exceeded about 50, Higgin said. Beyond that level it would take careful scheduling because the docks would be busy.

Higgin was elaborating on a statement by Visitors Information Centre past president Ted Balderson to the tourism committee of the Capital Region District that Victoria is in danger of losing more cruise ship visits.

"Other ports are making it more attractive and we are going to lose more," he said.

Balderson is the VIC representative to the regional board committee.

On a separate issue, the committee decided to urge the Visitors Information Centre to establish secondary tourist information booths in the district. The main tourist information centre is on the Causeway.

Higgin today said he expected to see two new information booths next summer, one on the Island Highway and the other on the Pat Bay highway. Sites are being discussed with the provincial government.

Saanich offer on refugees

Council voted to ask the Capital Region District to provide an office where refugee sponsorship work can be co-ordinated.

Ald. John Mika said the drive in this area to help the Vietnamese "boat people" and other refugees is picking up speed, but the workers need office space.

The offer coincides with a campaign by the Canadian Red Cross Society for funds to aid Vietnamese refugees.

Rick Couvelier, president of the Victoria branch of the Red Cross, said in a press release all funds raised will be sent directly to refugee camps in Southeast Asia.

Victorians who want to help the refugees should know the first sanctuary for a large number of the boat people is provided by refugee camps operated by the Red Cross, Couvelier said.

He said 80,000 camps are in Malaysia alone.

So far the Canadian Red Cross has contributed about $65,000 from reserve funds and is now asking all Canadians for help.

Donations can be made to Victoria Red Cross House at 1046 Fort, V8V 3K4, and are tax deductible.

Saanich council has agreed to fund half of a $7,500 scholarship to Pearson College and will ask Victoria to contribute the rest.

Aldermen were told Monday all Pearson students are on scholarships and that the institute relies heavily on private donations to keep operating.

The federal government contributes 25 per cent of the college's yearly $1.6 million budget and provincial governments fund another 25 per cent. The rest comes from private corporate donations, according to a spokesman for the board of directors.

The Saanich scholarship will be offered in September and Victoria Mayor Mike Young has agreed to take the request to his council, Ald. John Mika said.

In other business, council approved a public works committee recomendation to close one block of Torquay Avenue because of concerns from parents the road carries a dangerously high traffic volume.

Council also endorsed a controversial tree protection bylaw designed mainly to restrict logging in rural areas.

The bylaw will be amended to allow the removal without a permit of hazardous trees in restricted areas.

Casinos closed for hanky-panky

LONDON (AP) — Magistrates who heard tales of widespread hanky-panky ruled Monday that Ladbroke's — the biggest legal gambling group in Britain — must close four luxurious London casinos because it is unfit to run them.

The magistrates agreed with objections by the U.S.-owned Playboy Club and Scotland Yard and refused to renew Ladbroke's licences under the Gaming Act.

It was business as usual at Ladbroke gaming tables Monday night, however. The casinos may continue operating pending an appeal, which the firm said will be filed within the required 21 days.

The case centred around alleged unorthodox actions by Ladbroke's aimed at enticing gamblers away from rival clubs in London's West End. The magistrates ruled the actions impermissible.

Private detectives hired by Ladbroke's jotted down car numbers outside rival casinos and were able to trace the car owners through contacts in police computer operation, the court was told.

Ladbroke's then invited these gamblers to free meals, sent them flowers and fruits and invited them to become members of the Ladbroke clubs in London, witnesses said.

Thousands of pounds were paid to hotel porters to introduce prospective gamblers to Ladbroke casinos and some gamblers were paid commissions to introduce "big losers," Simon Tuckey of the official Gaming Board told the court.

Ladbroke's lawyers accused Victor Lownes of the Playboy Club of objecting to the licence renewal through jealousy and an eye to the "rich pickings" that might follow a closedown of Ladbroke casinos.

Ladbroke's casinos accounted for half the $88-million profit last year. The firm's casino division, Ladup Ltd., has 1,400 employees and 19,000 shareholders.

More than $33 million was wiped off the company's stock market value in late dealings Monday after the ruling.

$4.9M suit a family affair

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — An 11-year-old boy injured in a traffic accident two years ago has received an out-of-court settlement of $4.9 million in a suit against his sister, his father and three insurance companies.

The settlement is believed to be the largest of its kind in Wisconsin history.

The settlement, approved Monday, calls for payment of $4.3 million to Todd Leaverton of Hartford over a 60-year period.

The lawsuit, brought by Todd and his mother, Elaine Rulo, named three insurance companies, his sister and his father as defendants. Leaverton and Mrs. Rulo were divorced after the accident and she remarried.

N-plant back in 4 years

by KEITH RICHBURG
Washington Post

WASHINGTON - Nuclear power experts estimated Monday that it could cost up to $340 million and take four years for the Three Mile Island atomic plant in Pennsylvania to recover from the March 28 accident that put it out of operation.

A study by the Bechtel Power Corp., for Three Mile Island owner General Public Utilities Corp., said the plant can be safely recommissioned. After the spring accident, when the reactor overheated and a meltdown was feared, the possibility was raised that the plant would never reopen.

Also at that time it was estimated that the plant could be returned to operation at a cost of $140 million to $280 million and a delay of two to three years.

Bechtel's estimate that the rehabilitation of Three Mile Island Unit 2 could cost $405 million, including $85 million to replace the damaged reactor core.

GPU added $25 million to the Bechtel estimate to cover "possible cost uncertainties." Bechtel projected the plant could be restarted in June 1983.

"Bechtel also estimated that the time schedule could vary six months either way," GPU said. "The timetable does not consider extraordinary legal, political or regulatory delays which could add to the cost estimate," GPU said.

GPU's total estimate of $430 million could change because the extent of the plant contamination is as yet uknown, and there is the possibility of modifications that could come out of reviews of the accident by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the presidential blue-ribbon commission.

But the $430 million figure represents what is believed to be the first best guess of the clean up cost after the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident.

Workers still have been unable to enter the plant's containment building, which holds radioactive water from the accident. The Bechtel report said that GPU executives hope to gain entrance to the containment structure later this year or early next year.

GPU Chairman William H. Kuhns said that "safety of the operation will be paramount."

Pakistan airline employees riot

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Airport police opened fire on rock-throwing airline employees at Islamabad Airport, leaving 17 persons injured, nearly $1 million in damage, sending passengers diving for cover and shutting down the field for five hours, officials said.

The clash erupted Monday night when the security force insisted on examining the passes of Pakistan International Airline employees, even though the airline employees are exempt from checks.

The force was created by Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, the executed former prime minister, and consists mainly of supporters of his Pakistan People's Party.

The force has been sent to its barracks and regular police have taken over security at Islamabad airport for the time being. The government has ordered an inquiry into the clash.

Row over profits snags Alaska pipe

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — While U.S. President Jimmy Carter is urging completion "without delay" of the Alaska natural gas pipeline, project sponsors have threatened to stop work on the $14 billion project that would bring Alaskan gas to the lower 48 states.

The pipeline project has been before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission for about two years and is tied up in a dispute over how much profit the pipeline owners will be allowed to make.

Carter Monday blamed the oil-company owners of the gas for tieing up the pipeline, and instructed Energy Secretary James Schlesinger to meet with them to see that the project is completed "without delay."

The partnership that has proposed building the pipeline is hoping to complete the Alaskan segment in 1984, with southern portions bringing gas from Canada before that.

Carter told the National Association of Counties in Kansas City that the pipeline by 1985 could supply enough gas to displace 700,000 barrels a day of imported oil.

Three oil companies - Exxon, Atlantic Richfield and Standard Oil of Ohio, in conjunction with British Petroleum — own almost all the gas reserves of the Prudhoe Bay fields.

Under Carter's 1977 order setting out how the project was to be built, these companies, which produce the natural gas, were to take part in financing the pipeline.

A spokeswoman for Alaskan Northwest Natural Gas Transportation Co., the partnership which intends to build the pipeline, said her company has tried to start negotiations with the oil companies but has received no response.

The spokeswoman said the oil companies were expected to provide loan guarantees for the project's debt financing, expected to account for three-fourths of the $12 billion to $14 billion cost of the pipeline.

The loan guarantees are crucial because they will make it much easier to attract private financing for the rest of the project.

(A dampening already has been noticed on world financial markets where the U.S. dollar has been sinking steadily since Carter's first speech Sunday. Page 16.)

Somoza flies to U.S. exile

Times News Services

MANAGUA — Anastasio Somoza Debayle resigned as president of Nicaragua today and flew to exile in the United States, leaving the country his family ruled for 43 years to guerrilla forces who had fought for more than a decade to depose him.

A private Lear jet streaked out of Nicaragua carrying Somoza, his son Anastasio and half-brother Gen. Jose R. Somoza to Homestead Air Force Base near Miami. An entourage of more than 40 flew in four other planes.

The fleet touched down shortly before 7 a.m PDT at the giant air base, which was sealed off to reporters and photographers.

Somoza, whose personal fortune is estimated at $500 million, and his party were met by waiting limousines that took them to a walled mansion on Miami Beach's Sunset Island. It is one of several luxurious home where he may stay if he decides to take up permanent residence in the Miami area.

Somoza embraced waiting family and friends and then held a short news conference on a side patio of the two-story, tiled-roof home.

"I am grateful to the government of the United States to allow me to live here in exile," he said.

He said he had enough friends in the Miami area that he could pursue a livelihood. He may engage in an import-export or fishing business while in exile, he added.

He owns at least one Miami-based business, Central American Beef and Seafood Trading Co., one of Miami's larger beef and seafood importers.

The Somoza family also has substantial interests in at least two other corporations with offices in Miami, Lanica Airlines and Mamenic Line shipping company.

He also has holdings in several other states, including a ranch in Texas.

"I am presenting my resignation to bring peace to my people," Somoza said in a message to a weary Nicaraguan Congress called to order just before dawn, "and history will say I'm right because I fought against Communism all my life."

Doses of bad news issued on economy

Times News Services

OTTAWA — There were two stiff doses of bad news about the economy today with predictions of slower growth, continued high inflation and unemployment and a record $13 billion federal spending deficit.

Economic Development Minister Robert de Cotret told reporters government revenue will fall short of total spending this year by $13 billion, up sharply from the $10.75 billion deficit that had been predicted by the former Liberal government.

And the Conference Board in Canada issued a pessimistic outlook on the economy saying the impact of a U.S. recession in Canada will mean more unemployment and even slower growth than the country has experienced in the last two years.

De Cotret's remarks to reporters came as he and Manpower Minister Ron Atkey announced they would spend $100 million on a Canada Works temporary job creation program, aimed at easing unemployment in the more depressed regions of the country.

They said unemployment would get worse but de Cotret said he did not expect Canada would actually head into a recession.

Atkey said 91 per cent of the money will be spent in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces, areas of highest unemployment, and the rest in British Columbia, the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

The money will be paid to community groups using unemployed for community projects.

The Canada Works program was created by the previous Liberal government in 1977 and to date $510 million has been spent to create 107,000 short-term jobs.

During the May 22 election campaign the Conservatives pledged a new-look employment policy that would make greater use of the private sector and seek to create more permanent jobs. The two ministers said there was not enough time to do what they wanted to do before this winter and thus Canada Works is being used one more time.

The Conservatives have yet to release the detailed overview on the economy that finance minister John Crosbie promised shortly after taking over the portfolio.

Concern about a slowdown in the U.S. economy deepened last week as the Carter administration predicted the U.S. was headed into a recession.

The U.S. buys about 70 per cent of the more than $55 billion in goods that Canada exports and a slowdown south of the border means a weakening of markets for goods produced here.

"It is very difficult to escape the conclusion that the economy is heading toward a period of very low growth," said Dr. Thomas Maxwell, vice president and chief economist of the Conference Board in Canada.

Maxwell gloomily predicted inflation would average 9.2 per cent throughout 1980 because of high food prices, rapidly rising import prices and higher wages that would depress industrial profits to 6 per cent in 1980 from 18 per cent this year.

Eggs up two cents

Eggs went up another two cents a dozen in Victoria this week in response to rising feed costs.

Eggs have risen about seven cents a dozen since November and further hikes are indicated.

Egg prices are set by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency based on the cost of production. Feed costs have been rising steadily since fall.

ICBC scoops $5.3M debts

A crackdown on bad debts has netted the Insurance Corp of B.C. $5.3 million dollars, some of it owed since the Crown corporation was established five years ago.

Early this year, the corporation issued a confidentail list of debtors to 786 insurance agents and motor vehicle branch offices in an effort to collect the $19 million owed by 106,000 motorists.

Faced with the choice of having their insurance cancelled or paying the debt, 30,690 people have paid.

"We're still going after the others," public relations officer Bob Egby said Monday.

He said that more than $1.5 billion in insurance premiums has been collected since 1974, while less than $10 million is owed on premiums. The corporation had a surplus of $6.1 million last year.

The other part of the debt is from penalty point premiums, assessed after a driver accumulates more than six points for driving infractions.

Premiums are based on the square of the points accumulated to a maximum of $400, but this may be one of the last years that penalty point premiums, which have brought the corporation $53 million since 1974, are levied. A study group set up last fall by the motor vehicle branch, wants them abolished.

A mandatory licence suspension accompanies the non-payment of insurance or penalty premiums but difficulty in notifying people of the suspension has created a tremendous backlog in the motor vehicles branch and, said the group's interim report, "diverted attention from suspensions based on bad driving records."

It recommended that penalty premiums be replaced with fines.

Beautiful blue skies still hanging in there

In fact, he says things are going to be even better.

Dressler explained that the hot weather is being caused by a "thermal trough," a low-pressure area that's caused by high temperatures in the Interior.

"We're into our normal summer-type weather," Dressler said.

With the trough situated along the coast, there's an outflow of hot dry air from the Interior, Dressler explained further.

The trough will start to move inland in the next day or so, reversing the airflow and causing moist breezes to waft in from the Pacific.

That will give Vancouver Island much the same weather it's enjoyed over the last couple of days, but with more comfortable temperatures.

There will probably be some early morning fog up towards Sooke in the next few days, but the sun will quickly burn it off.

Yesterday's high of 32 degrees at the airport (31 downtown) was a whole four Celsius degrees off the all-time sizzler of 36.1 degrees back in 1941 — and that too was on July 16.

Hot spot in the province yesterday was Lytton at 38, while high honors for Vancouver Island went to Port Alberni for its 34.

UVic study blasts B.C. medical training

A University of Victoria report blasts the health ministry for the poor state of medical training and says there are severe deficiencies in professional training as a whole in the province.

The hard-hitting report says B.C. is far behind the Canadian average in training in all but three professions with the worst situations occurring in medicine, engineering and commerce.

The report, prepared by UVic staff, lays the blame for the medical crisis directly to the ministry's bad policies.

It says children largely from elite families in B.C. go to medical school and calls for more government assistance through the B.C. student assistance plan.

UVic president Howard Petch said the report will be released later this week.

"It will be handed out to every MLA and politically influential person we can think of," he said in an interview.

The report points out severe deficiencies in professional education in B.C and shows the need for increased government assistance to students.

"I'm hoping the government, when it sees what is happening, will act."

A copy of the report will be sent to the Universities Council of B.C., responsible for distributing government funds to the province's three universities each year.

Petch believes the government doesn't fully understand the problem.

Reacting to the UVic report, Health Minister Bob McClelland said today the lack of B.C.-trained doctors is the very reason the government is building a major new teaching hospital at the University of B.C.

That facility will double the number of graduating doctors from 80 per year to 160.

The hospital should be operational by early next year and UBC has already started to increase the number of medical students.

Well over 100 will enrol this fall.

The minister said the decision to increase the number of doctors has not been without its critics. The B.C. Medical Association, among others, says B.C. already has too many doctors and training more will just compound that problem.

McClelland said, however, it is his ministry's responsibility to give every educational opportunity to B.C. students.

And the minister said Dr. Petch is talking nonsense if he says B.C. is losing federal research money because there is only one medical training facility in the province.

He said Petch only wants such a facility at UVic but the ministry has no plans for any such project at this time.

"B.C. is not losing federal research money as far as I can see," McClelland said. "Federal research funds have been cut way back, but that move has affected every province."

But B.C. has made available major new funds through lottery grants which are funding numerous medical research projects.

"We're filling a major gap created when the federal government backed out," the minister said.

Comprised mainly of statistics, the report details the slow development of professional schools over the past 30 years, pointing out the deficiencies.

"I get quite worked up when I think about it," said Petch.

The unhealthy medical situation can be traced directly to the health ministry's policies, Petch charged.

The ministry refuses to provide more medical training facilities because it is cheaper to bring doctors, nurses and other medical

Times News Services

The world's financial markets showed scant confidence in U.S. President Jimmy Carter's energy proposals today as the price of gold soared to a new high and the dollar tumbled further on Asian and European exchanges.

Gold leaped by $4.125 overnight in London and Zurich to open at $297 an ounce — an all-time high.

In London, where sterling is buoyed up by Britain's North Sea oil reserves, the pound strengthened considerably. Sterling opened at $2.2605 (U.S.) up nearly 2 cents from the overnight close of $2.2420.

The opening price in London was the dollar's lowest since June, 1975, though as trading got under way, the U.S. currency came back slightly and sterling was quoted at $2.2580.

In a related development, two private U.S. economists reported Monday that the oil-rich OPEC nations have so much money invested in U.S. banks that members of the alliance could disrupt the U.S. dollar's stability by simply withdrawing their funds.

And the potential impact could be even more severe if OPEC countries — fuelled by new funds from the latest round of oil price increases — funnel more cash into U.S. investments, the economists add.

The U.S. treasury department has declined to release breakdowns on U.S. investments by individual countries, contending such action could embarrass certain sensitive governments — primarily Saudi Arabia — and trigger the large-scale withdrawals economists worry about.

As a result, the extent of investments by individual OPEC countries is not publicly known and the impact a withdrawal could have is in dispute.

For example, estimates of U.S. investments by OPEC countries presented to a House of Representatives subcommittee Monday ranged from $52.1 billion to $90 billion, with the bulk coming from Saudi Arabia.

Probably the most pessimistic outlook came from Paul Erdman, an international economist and author of The Crash of '79, and from Douglas Lamont, dean of the Walter E. Heller College of Business Administration in Chicago.

"Lines at the gas pumps could someday be succeeded by lines outside the banks," said Erdman, who predicted large withdrawals of OPEC money not only would devalue the U.S. dollar but could set off runs on U.S. banks by U.S. investors.

Lamont said the Saudi Arabians "can destabilize the American dollar whenever they choose" and contended the Saudi government caused the 1978 drop in the U.S. dollar's value on international monetary markets by cutting back its investment in U.S. government securities.

Louis Walinsky, an economic consultant to Robert A. Nathan Associates, agreed that Saudi Arabia has acquired "a degree of influence and power over the U.S. never before achieved by any other nation in our history." But he said he didn't feel a rapid withdrawal of investments would be "a threat as of now," although they could become a future problem.

Carter's energy speech, economists Monday said that while his new measures may help slightly to hasten the economy's recovery from recession next year, they could add to inflation over the longer run.

Some experts question whether the nation can build 30 synthetic fuel plants over the next 10 years - as would be required to meet Carter's 2 million-barrel-a-day goal by 1990 - with the present construction force and equipment.

The president, however, appears certain to get most of the main features of his energy program through Congress because similar proposals are already in the works on Capitol Hill.

For example, the Senate Government Operations Committee headed by Abraham Ribicoff, today began hearings on establishing an entity similar to Carter's proposed Energy Security Corporation to direct development of domestically produced synthetic fuels, mostly from coal and oil shale.

Later this week, in another Senate committee, Sen. Henry Jackson will begin marking up his bill establishing an entity similar to what Carter proposed — an Energy Mobilization Board — to expedite constructimn of energy facilities.

Next week, Jackson's committee will try to write a single bill creating a synthetic fuel program and authorizing waivers of various govermnment regulations to expedite projects aimed at meeting the nation's energy needs. The sources of that omnibus bill would be the many pieces of legislation introduced by members of Congress plus the Carter proposals.

His hope, Jackson reports, is to get such a bill - similar to the heart of Carter's new energy program - voted by the Senate before the August recess begins.

Next week, the full House will vote on a proposal similar to the standby gasoline rationing authority Carter is requesting.

The House, which has passed a synthetic fuels bill by an overwhelming vote, is expected to act promptly on legislation sponsored by Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., to cutup regulatory red tape.

150 km/h chase nets pair

Two men are to appear in provincial court following a police chase which hit speeds of 150 km/h through parts of Saanich and View Royal Monday night.

A Saanich police spokesman said the men were arrested after the fleeing vehicle — reported stolen in Victoria earlier in the day — was finally forced off the road by a police car at Helmcken and Old Island Highway.

The spokesman said both vehicles were damaged.

He said the two suspects face an array of charges.

The 33-year-old driver is charged with criminal negligence, impaired driving, driving while his licence was under suspension, theft over $200 and possession of stolen property. His 37-year-old passenger was jointly charged with the latter two offences.

The chase began shortly before 9 p.m. when a Saanich patrol officer spotted the car on the Trans-Canada Highway near Tillicum.

The car was driven off at high speed starting police on a 13.8-kilometre chase along the highway and through the quiet suburban streets.

Somoza flies to exile

Chamber of Deputies, the lower house of Congress, was elected as interim head of state and was to turn the government over to the Sandinista-backed provisional junta.

Sergio Ramirez Mercado, leader of the five-member junta, said in Costa Rica that the new rulers planned a triumphial entry in Managua, accompanied by the foreign ministers of eight other Latin American countries.

The radio station of the Sandinista National Liberation Front, a broad-based coalition led by avowed Marxists, announced Somoza's departure early today.

"The genocidal dictatorship of Somoza has been overthrown and the people of Nicaragua are free," the clandestine broadcast said. "The national guard has been annihalated."

The Sandinistás, formed in 1963, have waged a sporadic guerrilla war against Somoza with help from Cuba, which trained many of their guerrillas, and the leftist regime in Panama.

Since January 1978 an estimated 15,000 persons — mostly civilians — have been kiilled in fighting between Somoza'a national guard and the Sandinistas. Tens of Thousands of others have been left homeless.

The capital of Managua, the only city not controlled by the Sandinistas when Somoza resigned, was quiet today, and when the curfew was lifted at dawn, national guardsmen who have been patrolling the streets disappeared.

According to Washington sources, the United States government expects the fall of the Somoza goverment to be followed by a long power struggle within Sandinista ranks between Cuban-trained Marxists and moderates, with a fair chance the moderates will prevail.

Sources said the United States, as mediator in the talks that led to Somoza's departure, has received commitments from the provisional government to avoid "another Iran."

Informed sources in the U.S. capital described the situation that ended the Somoza family's reign as a Latin American tragedy, with the central figure — Somoza — an intransigent and unyielding man who did not realize until too late that he was facing a popular uprising.

people in from outside the province, he said.

"That's true, but we are limiting opportunities for our own young people."

The province's only medical school is at the University of B.C. and admits 80 students a year from a list of about 1,500 applicants.

The competition is incredible and academic standards unnaturally high — marks are often checked as far back as the beginning of high school.

As a result, only children from B.C.'s economic elite get into medicine because they can afford to go to England or Alberta for their training.

"And that's rotten," Petch stated.

He said while establishing professional medical schools in B.C. will cost a good deal, it will be worth it in the long run.

The side benefits are considerable — construction of buildings will provide new jobs, the standard of health care will go up, and more research will be done in the province.

B.C. loses out on federal grants for research because there is only one medical school in the province.

Living high amid fickle elements

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Gale-force winds, fog, snow, rain and freezing temperatures have been experienced by two botanists making a summer survey of plant communities high above the timberline of Vancouver Island's snow-capped mountains.

But Dr. Robert Ogilvie, curator of the botany division of the Provincial Museum, and visiting plant ecologist Dr. Claude Beguin of the University of Neuchatel's botany institute in Switzerland, don't seem to mind the periodic discomforts.

Experienced alpinists, they have just returned from a survey of alpine areas of Strathcona Park where it rained for an entire week and snowed once.

Soon they will be off again to continue their work in other mountainous regions of the island, recording and studying the relations of plants to their harsh alpine environment.

Most of the summer and early fall will be spent above the timberline.

"It can be very beautiful up there," Beguin said. "But sometimes it can be very nasty. Fog can suddenly set in and snowstorms are not unusual in summer."

Both are aware of hazards of alpine country. Beguin lost two friends in the Alps in an avalanche and Ogilvie ran into some tricky situations exploring the Canadian Rockies before coming to Victoria.

"Anyone planning to hike in alpine regions should carry proper equipment and clothing — down jackets and wind jackets, mittens, raingear, proper hiking boots and extra rations," Ogilvie said.

"Weather in alpine regions in summer can change from day to day and it can close in on you. You have to be prepared and be cautious."

For shelter the scientists take with them a low-slung tent because it can resist strong winds.

Both say alpine hiking, climbing, and skiing has its joys but they're not too anxious to see theseforms of recreation expand in B.C. because of the sensitivity of the environment at high altitudes.

"In Europe it's a real problem," said Beguin. "Many thousands of people use the alpine areas for various forms of recreation, hiking, climbing and skiing. And certain areas are used for growing hay or for cattle grazing. There is a real conflict of interest between man and the alpine ecological systems."

The result has been soil erosion, pollution and a danger of some plants becoming extinct, Beguin said.

This conflict of interest is one of the reasons he is here.

His studies will be compared with those carried out in the Swiss Alps and eventually it is hoped to reduce the conflict of interest between man and alpine plant communities.

Ogilvie, who is also participating in the research project, is Canada's leading authority on alpine flora.

"So far you have been lucky here because you haven't got some of our problems," said Beguin.

"But I've noticed some alpine areas used for skiing are getting pretty messy, and signs of heavy soil erosion are quite evident."

Alpine plants, he noted, mirror the surrounding environment.

They indicate what type of soil prevails in the area as well as its climate, animals and minerals.

HITCHING THEIR HOPES to high-riding balloons, these Esquimalt youngsters are taking part in the Greater Victoria Public Library's annual Super Kids Summer Fun Program. They released helium-filled balloons carrying their name tags and finders will return them to the central library on Yates Street. The youngster whose balloon flew farthest will be walking on air.

TOWN TALK

Maybe it's about time somebody asked the Washington State park authority just what's going on in Birch Bay.

A growing number of Canadian visitors, including Bill Cameron, are wondering if the authority is aware some of its staff are apparently shilling for a private camp and trailer park operator in the community.

Visitors last weekend who turned up at the state park were told it was full but were handed cards entitling them to a "free" night's camping in the privately-owned ACI site.

But when Cameron and companions arrived at the site, they were told by the operator that they weren't really entitled to a free night but something might be arranged if they were interested in signing up — the figure of around $5,000 was mentioned as well as annual dues — for a year round spot in the park.

The Canadians told the operator what they could do with his come-on, tore up their "free" cards and left.

It's not often that Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Mel Cooper opposes economic development but there is one industry he would never welcome.

Legalizing gambling in this province, as suggested by MLA Don Lockstead (NDP — Mackenzie), would mean nothing but trouble, Cooper says.

Tourism Minister Don Phillips also opposes the idea.

The plans of Victoria tourist operators to advertise south of the border that B.C. has abundant supplies of gasoline to lure American tourists may run into trouble.

Ontario's department of tourism planned a publicity blitz in the eastern U.S. to get the same message across, but the ad campaign was cancelled after federal government officials complained that this was inconsistent with Canada's policy of energy conservation.

Not to say boastful and smug, thinks Town Talk. For every American visitor it brings into Canada, how many would be turned off?

There seems to be nothing more durable than coupon book schemes.

And while there is nothing illegal about them either, they invariably raise the eyebrows of Bill Tindall, manager of the Victoria Better Business Bureau.

This week Tindall says he's being flooded with calls about the latest in a long list of schemes to hit the Victoria area — a coupon booklet sponsored by the B.C. Lacrosse Association and marketed by Direct Marketing of Calgary.

The booklet costs $29.95 and each coupon entitles purchasers to get two of whatever for the price of one.

The sales pitch makes it all sound like the money is going to a worthy cause — the promotion of sport and phsyical fitness — but in actual fact the promoters walk away with about 45 per cent of the proceeds. Tindall says the lacrosse association gets only $8 and a like amount is given to a national group called CAPHER or the Canadian Association for Phsyical Health Education and Recreation.

He suggests purchasers familiarize themselves with the facts before being tempted into buying. Caveat "temptor."

Saanich going ahead with park

Curtis demands ignored

Royal Oak industrial park will proceed in spite of opposition from Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis, Saanich council decided Monday.

Council will ignore — at least for the time being — Curtis' public demand that Saanich drop the Royal Oak proposal.

Aldermen said they were confused over Curtis' sudden opposition and uncertain about his intention to enforce government pressure.

But they decided to invoke the support of property owners and continue planning the industrial park.

Ald. David Paterson advised council not to respond to Curtis' statement.

"It's up to property owners who wish this thing to go ahead to carry the ball and support the compromise proposal."

He said if council lets the people decide, the natural course of events should evolve.

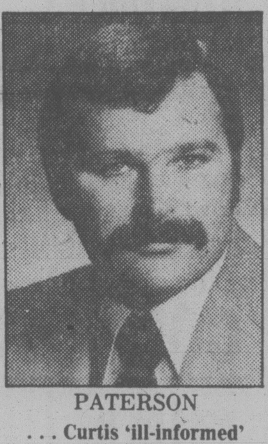
Paterson charged that Curtis is ill-informed and only heard one side of the issue before making up his mind.

In a letter to council, Curtis said it was his duty as MLA to speak out against the proposal even though his action might be interpreted as interference in local government.

Curtis said he had several meetings with residents and has received a large number of concerned letters.

The original industrial park plan introduced while he was mayor of Saanich was much smaller and would have had less impact on the neighborhood, Curtis said in the letter.

"Finally, I must tell you I am very impressed by the industrial area which has been developed in Central Saanich and which has significant space available for future expansion."



PATERSON
... Curtis 'ill-informed'

Ald. Fred Severson said he was shocked at the comparison of Keating Crossroad to Royal Oak and that it was obvious Curtis hasn't done his homework.

"He's badly misinformed if he thinks we are putting in the same kind of development," Severson said.

Curtis should have voiced his opposition prior to the election — it would have saved council a lot of work, time and embarrassment, he said.

Ald. Sandy Noel said he resented Curtis' statements to the media before he contacted council.

Noel recommended Saanich carry on with its plans until it hears something definite from the ministry.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said he wasn't going to get involved in the debate because he needs the minister's cooperation on a several proposals.

An application for a proposed Saanich Cultural Centre and Horticultural Pavilion is sitting on Curtis' desk, Couvelier said.

"I'm not anxious to get into a public debate with the minister," said Couvelier, who added he didn't want to create the implication of blackmail.

Ask the Times

Q. Can you tell me if 'J'Accuse' is the title of a French book? W.D.Y.

A. No. It's the title of a famous open letter written by French writer Emile Zola to the president of the French republic. He accused the government of concealing the facts in the Dreyfus Affair. The latter was a notorious French miscarriage of justice in which anti-Semitism was a prominent factor.

Tourist robbed of $500

City police said Mary Alice Sagin of Keewatin was walking along Douglas near Spruce with her husband, Witold, when a youth ran up from behind, grabbed her purse and took off in a car.

Mrs. Sagin, who was not injured in the 11:10 p.m. incident, described the thief as about 20 and of average build.

Her brown leather purse contained the cash, ID cards, car keys and room key to their Wharf Street hotel.

Police reiterated a warning to women not to carry large amounts of cash in their purses when walking on the streets late in the afternoon or night.

Bunn attacks RJH chairman for by-passing his directors

Royal Jubilee Hospital board director Peter Bunn said today chairman Terry Prentice's announcement Monday of the closure of 14 beds was made without informing or consulting the board.

Bunn said he is "surprised and dismayed" by Prentice's action.

More elective surgery will have to be postponed and the impact in human terms will be enormous, Bunn said.

"Maybe it was necessary to close the beds and maybe not," he said.

"What I can't understand is why a decision this important was made by the chairman without consulting the full board."

Bunn, who has served notice of motion to make RJH board meetings public for the first time, said the closure announcement is one of a number of decisions made by Prentice without full debate.

"He is turning the board into a rubber stamp. I am not and never will be a rubber stamp."

Bunn said Prentice should have considered calling an emergency meeting of the board if he felt quick action was needed. First chance for the board to question Prentice on the decision will be the next meeting July 26.

Bunn said he expects his motion to make hospital board meetings open to the press and public will also be voted on at that meeting.

Bunn said Prentice should resign if he continues to favor secret meetings.

Prentice said the nursing shortage has forced Jubilee to close temporarily another 14 acute care beds, bringing to 30 the number of beds taken out of service since June 15.

He said the closure is not due to cost containment or budget restrictions and it is expected to last until after the Labor Day weekend.

The hospital also had to close 18 beds in the Eric Martin Institute because of a shortage of experienced psychiatric care nurses.

As of Sunday 27 per cent of 463 acute care beds were occupied by long-term care patients.

In addition, the hospital has 25 patients who require intensive care nursing and only 11 intensive care beds. The other 14 patients are being cared for in other parts of the building not equipped as intensive care nursing units.

To provide proper care, registered nurses have been diverted to work in these areas, leaving other areas with reduced staff levels. Staffing the temporary intensive care units on a 24-hour basis requires 12 registered nurses.

The 14-bed closure Monday has released registered nurses for work in other areas.

By the beginning of August there will be a total of 43 vacancies for registered nurses in the main hospital and 11 at the EMI.

A recent recruiting drive for nurses produced eight applications, of which two are immediately available.

The drive is continuing and the hospital is processing 15 applications from nurses available in late August. More applications are anticipated.

But Jubilee has been unable to find nurses with recent high-level experience prepared to work full-time.

Prentice said adequate levels of care will be provided to all patients, but elective surgery is subject to postponement, Prentice said.

Gray Line inquiry requested

Drivers back at wheel, continue work to rule

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber said today he will ask the Motor Carrier Commission to conduct a formal inquiry into complaints which sparked a walkout by Gray Line bus drivers Monday.

The drivers are back on the job today but are continuing to work to rule.

The drivers walked out to protest Gray Line's failure to honor the old contract under which the drivers worked before Gray Line was sold to a Seattle company last year.

The drivers, members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Workers, won successor rights under a Labor Relations Board ruling.

They say Gray Line is paying drivers $2 an hour less than they got under the old agreement. Negotiations on a new agreement start Thursday.

The drivers have been working to rule for a week and a half, refusing overtime and work on days off.

CBRT committee chairman, Lorne deGirolamo, said the company only set a negotiating date when they started their work-to rule.

The drivers also complain that they are continually forced to apologize to tourists for substandard service because the buses are run down; there aren't enough saets and they are often not properly cleaned.

DeGirolamo said Gray Line Seattle undertook before it purchased the line to buy new buses but the firm has not followed through.

Local Gray Line manager William Bridges said today the drivers' complaints are exaggerated but would make no further comment because of Thursday's negotiations.

Barber said the walkout came as no surprise to him.

"Absentee ownership is always second best."

Pulp men moving to peace

Striking pulp workers at two mills in remote north-central B.C. voted Monday on a tentative agreement that could herald labor peace in the province's crucial forest industry for the next two years.

The Canadian Paperworkers Union have refused to recommended either acceptance or rejection of a proposed industry-wide master contract until local issues at the two mills in Mackenzie, about 160 kilometres north of Prince George, are resolved.

The union did, however, endorse an agreement hammered out in Mackenzie by union and industry negotiators during the weekend.

Indications from other locals of the industry's second-largest union are that the master contract is on its way to acceptance by a good majority of its 7,500 members and approval of the Mackenzie pact would seal the agreement. Results of the province-wide vote are expected Wednesday.

Local-by-local results of voting by the 40,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America also indicate that the master contract was being endorsed by a hefty majority of the industry's largest union.

Complete results are not expected until July 24, but union president Jack Munro said Monday that an unofficial count indicated the agreement is being approved by a vote of roughly 70 per cent.

The only note of discord over the master contract was heard from the smallest of the three forestry unions involved in negotiations, the 5,500-member Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada (PPWC).

The agreement was rejected by 51.6 per cent of PPWC members in results released Friday. Union officials said Monday they would wait for a meeting with industry representatives Wednesday before deciding on any further strike action.

The chance that the PPWC could shut down the industry seemed remote, however, due to the slim margin of the rejection vote and rulings by the provincial labor relations board that the union cease picketing at several plants where it had no members, a tactic designed to keep members of other unions off the job.

The master contract, basically the same for all three unions, is the richest ever offered by the industry. The two-year proposal calls for hefty increases in fringe benefits and wage increases of 90 cents an hour in the first year and 90 cents or 9.5 per cent — whichever is higher — in the second. The present base rate is $8.16 an hour.

The Mackenzie workers, members of two paperworkers' locals at Finlay Forest Products and B.C. Forest Mills, went on strike 10 days ago demanding isolation pay.

Dick Lester, president of the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations' Bureau, said management rejected northern pay on the grounds that it would affect the whole industry and was therefore not negotiable on the local level.

Water meeting slated

A special meeting of North Saanich's water committee will be held Wednesday to discuss a shortage of water in the northern part of the municipality.

He said water pressure is as low as 30 pounds in some areas.

B.C. Ferries at Swartz Bay, he said, is adding to the problem by drawing water at inopportune times.

Westwood said the situation is similar to that in 1978 when the ferry coporation was co-operative

The Saanich Peninsula Water Commission has a permanent line constructed up to McTavish Road.

The commission will be considering in September continuing the line to Horth Hill, near Swartz Bay and constructing a reservoir there.

Victims named

Shawnigan Lake RCMP have released the names of two men killed when their car plunged off the Trans-Canada Highway opposite the Good Shepherd Shelter near Mill Bay Sunday night.

They were Robert Ashley-Price, 27, of Parksville, and William David Henderson, 28, of Nanaimo.

A third passenger, Cindi Lee Roslin, 25, of Nanaimo was thrown out of the car as it rolled down an embankment and into some trees and is in fair condition in Victoria General Hospital with multiple head injuries.

Police can't explain the accident which occurred at about 6 p.m. in bright sunny, dry weather.

An inquest is expected to be held but no date has been set.

BROKEN LEG AND TWO FRACTURED RIBS were only injuries suffered by demolition man Stan Ogle, 41, of Leamington, England, when he fell from the roof of a house he was working on in that Warickshire town. Picture was taken by an amateur photographer who happened to be passing the site on his way to a newsagent's.

Charges 'unlikely'

Criminal charges are unlikely in the death late last fall of a premature baby in Victoria General Hospital, Victoria crown counsel Nick Lang said on Monday.

However, Lang said, he will suggest the matter be dealt with by way of inquest and intends to forward a recommendation to that effect to the attorney-general's ministry later in the month.

Lang made the comments after reviewing a city police investigation into the death of a 23-week-old baby that was born by caesarian section to a 33-year-old severely retarded woman last December. The baby died 11 hours after birth.

The investigation had been requested by B.C.'s chief coroner Dr. William McArthur who noted several unusual features of the case when it was first brought to his attention May 10.

Names of the mother and attending physician have not been released.

It is understood a request for an abortion had been turned down a few days before the delivery took place.

McArthur, in a recent interview, said he would likely order an inquest if the crown elected not to proceed with criminal charges.

He said the case could raise important legal, moral and social issues.

Smith never Mair partner

Douglas Smith, a Kamloops lawyer recently appointed to the board of directors of the government-owned B.C. Development Corp. is not a law partner of Environment Minister Rafe Mair as reported in The Times.

Smith is a partner in Mair's former firm of Mair, Horne, Janowski and Blair, of which Mair is no longer a partner although the firm retains his name.

Mair quit law Dec. 31, 1975 when he was elected to the legislature.

Smith joined the firm after that time.

Smith, however, is a close friend and was Mair's campaign manager both in 1975 and 1979.

His appointment to the BCDC board has attacked by opposition MLAs.

Mac attack set on downtown

With quarter-pounders loaded, the forces of Ronald McDonald announced today they are preparing to launch a Big Mac attack on downtown Victoria.

Earlier plans to establish a beachhead at Douglas and Courtney streets were scrapped in 1977, with some downtown defenders suggesting that Golden Arches would blot the city's image.

Ronald Marcoux, executive vice-president of McDonald's Restaurants of Canada Ltd. told the Times today his firm has bought a downtown Victoria building that now houses Saba Bros. Ltd., one of a Vancouver-based chain of fabric stores.

The Saba store is at 1130 Douglas, between Fort and View streets, and Marcoux described the building as "unique."

He said McDonald's will take possession Sept. 1, and architects are already working on a design he hopes will enhance the brick building's architectural features.

"There will be two floors and open stairways and that sort of thing," Marcoux said.

Local approval of preliminary plans was given three weeks ago, and by the time McDonald's takes possession, Marcoux hopes his firm can award the contract for renovation.

If all goes well, he said, the new location could be dishing out Happy Meals by Christmas.

Everything you want from a store

Safeway believes that to give you the pick of the crop, our buyers have to go where the crops are picked!

Safeway's famous meats are very carefully trimmed for better eating, greater value. "It's not just meat . . . it's somebody's dinner!"

... and a little bit more

Safeway's Ⓢ Brands are our finest quality, guaranteed to please. Equal in quality to comparable national brands and generally priced lower.

We Safeway folks pride ourselves on trying a little harder, doing a little extra, showing that we care about you. You must have noticed. The Safeway attitude and the Safeway style reveal themselves in hundreds of ways. The friendly greeting from a checker. The tender care with which a produce clerk arranges a display of soft fruit. The meticulous, almost reverent way a meat cutter trims a steak. The friendly helpful presence of Safeway's Customer Service Representative making your shopping easier. Hundreds of ways . . .

In these difficult times, as always, we're thoroughly involved with you, our friends and customers. We're committed to supplying you with powerful, inflation fighting weapons that will help you save money and get maximum mileage out of your food dollar.
